'Dashing Dan' Dashes Into FBI's Arms

NEW YORK
"Dan," who has made a big name for himself in 20 bank stickups in Manhattan, Queens and Nassau since March 4, was identified at Raphael Pavia, 44, a native of Tunis and a bartender at the Hotel Americana.

In all of the robberies Pavia has been noted for his politeness and speed in moving from one bank to another. He often thanked the tellers for the money, and several times he left the bank without any loot after being refused by the tellers. In each instance when he received no money Pavia hit another bank a short time later.

Led to Pavia by a tip, the FBI was waiting at his home in Jamaica, Queens, after the $1,910 robbery. Dashing Dan "walked into the arms of waiting friends," quipped an FBI spokesman when questioned by newsmen.

Pavia's neighbors were shocked at the arrest. "There must be some mistake," said one, revealing that Pavia was married and the father of two married daughters and had a son in Vietnam.

Another said: "If you had something wrong in your place, Ralphie would come in and fix it. Boy, they sure got the wrong guy."

Teller Julia Camacho identified Pavia as the robber. She said that after she had given him the money he murmured, "Thank you very much." But Pavia discovered politeness doesn't always pay off, especially when coupled with bank robberies.

Flood Control Construction to Start Soon

Ellenville Project Cost $3.5 Million

By NANCY SULLIVAN

ELLENVILLE
Construction on the proposed $3.5 million flood control project in Ellenville will commence in about one month.

Discussion of the project highlighted Monday night's village board meeting. Prior to the meeting a public hearing was held on the proposed temporary one-way traffic pattern. Nearly nine years of discussion ended in a somewhat heated controversy before the board unanimously adopted this proposal.

Plans for the project have been in existence since 1960.

The original figure of the cost estimate to the village was about $296,800. However, today's estimated cost is $173,160. Relocation of the school's athletic field will be funded by the school through the state and relocating or rebuilding at the same site of the Resnick Drive Bridge will be delayed two or three years. Both of these factors contributed to the lower figure of the cost to the village.

In 1960, the village passed a resolution and later signed an agreement committing the village to the flood control project. A resident asked the board

"can the village have a permissive referendum on the proposed flood control project?" and was told it was not mandatory unless the people demanded it. The money for the proposed project can be raised by taxes or bonds.

Another resident commented that it would "disastrous" to add this money to the tax roll as it would hurt those on a fixed income, such as senior citizens.

In March, notice was supposedly sent to the Army Corps of Engineers that "no bridge" need be taken into consideration by the construction crews during the flood work, allowing the village decision of location to await the outcome of state decisions on Route 209 and Route 55 that are planned for relocation.

Rebuilding of the bridge was said to cost the village about $80,000, a figure said by village officials to have been estimated in 1965 during the height of flood plan talks in Ellenville.

Village engineer Aaron Horowitz said that there is a "set formula" that calls for the federal government to take care of all the basic costs, with the village required to pay for any of its own needs such as the Resnick Bridge and access roads.

The flood control project calls for proposed construction of local protection works on the Beer Kill, Fantine Kill and North Gully. Improvements would be made by construction of floodwalls, levees and channel improvements, utility changes, bridge replacements and alternations.

Attendance at the public hearing on the proposed one-way street pattern was lacking. The majority of residents present were against the proposal but it was felt that the group was not representative of all village residents.

The majority of the merchants present expressed opinions against the proposal. Several felt that adopting one way streets in the village would hurt business, especially the tourist business in the summer. One merchant said that people are "lazy" and not knowing the area, they will stop at the first available store to shop.

The purpose of the one-way street pattern is to speed up the traffic, but one person said if double parking could be stopped and if cars would only be allowed to park on one side of the main street, the flow of traffic would move swiftly.

One resident, who was for the proposal, felt that the village board should give it a try and see if there is any improvement. However, several of the merchants said it should not be at their expense and if the village wants to experiment, they should wait until the fall or winter when their business would not be affected as much.

One resident, for the proposal, said that the taxpayers as well as the merchants should be heard and another said that the merchants don't even give customers the chance to get into

South Viets Suffer Heavy Losses

SAIGON (UPI)—Charging behind mortar barrages, North Vietnamese infantrymen broke into a newly-established camp of South Vietnam's best infantry division in the jungle highlands today and inflicted the heaviest government losses in South Vietnam for six months.

Two American and one Australian advisor were also wounded in the attacks which military sources said killed 40 South Vietnamese troops.

wounded 67 and left 17 missing. The North Vietnamese force, estimated at battalion strength, left 81 of their dead in and around the camp, military sources said.

An estimated 700 men of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, which is taking over the defenses of the north from departing U.S. Marines, were spending their first night in an artillery base three miles from the border of Laos and 24 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone

(DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam.

Related stories on Cambodia on Page 5.

The Communist troops broke through the camp perimeter in a first assault shortly before 5 a.m. The defenders beat them off with the help of air strikes and artillery salvos, but the Communists again attacked the base three hours after daylight.

South Vietnamese reinforcements were rushed to the region.

Throughout the day the North Vietnamese poured mortar and sniper rifle fire into the camp, on the site of an abandoned U.S. artillery base known as "Tun Tavern" after the Philadelphia tavern where the U.S. Marine Corps was established during the Revolutionary War.

Military sources said that about 700 South Vietnamese troops were moved into the mountain camp to set up artillery batteries that could pound a network of roads which Communist forces were building from their Ho Chi Minh supply complex in Laos into the strategic border region.

The South Vietnamese losses were the heaviest in a single fight in South Vietnam since mid-November when 56 soldiers were killed in a battle in the Mekong River delta southwest of Saigon.

Reports this morning from Phnom Penh, capital of neighboring Cambodia, said Pathet Lao troops from Laos have joined the North Vietnamese in Cambodia in attempting to consolidate a supply line between Laos and base camps north of Phnom Penh. The guerrillas captured a town 65 miles north of the capital Monday.

South Vietnamese troops pushing up the Mekong River inside Cambodia toward the Communist camps ran into heavy resistance and reported killing 47 guerrilla soldiers this morning with fighter-bomber support. Government losses were listed as four men wounded.

American troops in Vietnam and Cambodia reported light fighting overnight. U.S. units in the Cambodian offensive turned up more truck engines and tools in an area 95 miles north-northeast of Saigon where they found a complete guerrilla field hospital Monday.

Latest Space Flight by Soviets Dedicated to Astro Armstrong

MOSCOW (UPI)—Two Soviet cosmonauts orbiting the earth in Soyuz 9 reported today everything was going smoothly in the flight, unofficially dedicated to visiting American astronaut Neil A. Armstrong.

Soviet sources said Armstrong watched the television films of the launch Monday night in the apartment of a cosmonaut, Maj. Gen. Georgy Beregovoy, during a party that lasted until 3 a.m. in honor of his trip to the moon. Armstrong's first inkling there would be a space shot in the flight, he turned on the television set shortly before the launch was shown and told him, "This is especially in honor of your trip here."

Armstrong was said to have replied: "It is one of the best gifts you can give me."

Soyuz 9 was launched at 10:09

p.m. Monday in an unusual night shot from the Central Asia Soviet Space Center at Baikonur.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the crew of the spaceship reported after five orbits this morning they were "coping well with conditions of weightlessness and carrying out the flight program."

Col. Andrian Nikolayev, 40, a space age pioneer making his first flight in eight years, was in command of the ship. His flight engineer was Vitaly Sevastianov, 35, making his first space voyage.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported this morning Soyuz 9 was circling the earth every 88.59 minutes. Its orbit on the third revolution was reported to be 137 miles from earth at its farthest point and 129 miles at its closest.

Tass said Soyuz 9 would conduct research into the effects of space flight on men, observations of various geological features of the earth, atmospheric studies and further perfection of the spacecrafts operational and navigational systems.

An official announcement on Moscow television 21 minutes after the launch indicated the flight would involve no other spacecraft. Tass indicated a relatively routine series of scientific assignments were planned.

Armstrong was guest of honor at a banquet at the cosmonauts' "Star City" on the outskirts of Moscow at the time of the launch.

Armstrong told his audience "I am confident the day will come when U.S. astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts and representatives of other peoples will explore the moon together."

It was not known whether Armstrong, the first man to set foot on the moon, had prior knowledge Soyuz 9 would be launched.

Valentina Tereshkova, Nikolayev's wife and the only woman to make a space flight, presented Armstrong with a bouquet of roses.

Council Expected to Approve Seven Mini-Parks for City

KINGSTON
Acting on a recent request by Mayor Francis R. Koenig and several aldermen to study a need for mini-parks in the city, the Parks and Recreation Commission will seek approval of seven such areas.

The request was sent to the Kingston Common Council by Andrew J. Murphy, III, secretary of the commission. The Council is expected to approve construction of the parks at tonight's meeting.

Murphy, in his letter to the Council, stated that matching funds are available from the state but the city's share must be available before construction starts.

Saying the parks are needed where there is heavy concentration of children and no open space for them to play, Murphy suggested the following sites:

- Intersection of Van Buren and Delmar Streets.
- Prospect Street between Henry and Cedar Streets.
- Summer Street section.
- Intersection of Prince Street and Foxhall Avenue.
- Elmendorf Street in the Albany Avenue area, and if possible, using a part of the cemetery property.

- Rondout Gardens section.
- Catherine Street section of Ponckhockie.

Describing the parks, Murphy said they could range in size from 50 by 100 feet to larger ones to include a basketball court. The areas would be enclosed by a four or six foot chain fence and would contain benches and playground equipment. He estimates the overall cost, including any land purchases, at between $65,000 to $70,000. Supervision would be provided entirely by interested mothers.

Murphy, on behalf of the Recreation Commission is asking specifically that the city apply to the Conservation Commission for matching funds to construct the mini-parks in the seven areas.

The Recreation Commission will also ask the council at its 7:30 p.m. meeting in City Hall to petition the New York State Division for Youth to again participate in the beautification program in which it has been engaged for the past five years.

Saugerties OKs Five of Six Junk Permits

SAUGERTIES Five out of six applicants were approved by the Saugerties town board to receive junkyard permits at a public hearing in Saugerties Monday night.

The five applicants were Raymond Ahl, Eugene Reese, Fred Shader, Frank Anderson and Richard Barnard. Ronald Tyler's application for a permit was not approved. One of the regulations of the junkyard ordinance is that there must be a fence or natural barrier enclosing the area and Tyler's cars were said to be too close to the highway.

If an application is not approved, junk cars must be removed to avoid prosecution under the junkyard ordinance, it was stressed.

The five applicants who met the regulations of the junkyard ordinance will be given their permits.

The Surtax Is Dying Our Paychecks to Get Fatter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pay envelopes grow a little fatter next month when the income tax surcharge, imposed in Lyndon B. Johnson's last year as president to help pay for the Vietnam war, becomes history. The tax, originally 10 per cent, was cut in half last January and dies altogether July 1, the day the government's new fiscal year begins. Its passing will cost $4.5 billion in federal revenue.

But strapped as the Nixon administration is for cash, with budget deficits predicted for the old and the new fiscal years, the surtax's death may help provide something needed even more: consumer buying to help end the near-recession before the November congressional elections.

As a result primarily of the surtax's political unpopularity, the Nixon administration is sticking currently to its plan to let it fade away.

But Nixon has pledged to ask Congress for new taxes next January if conditions don't improve. He already has requested a new tax on gasoline containing lead.

He is content for now to let a small deficit—estimated by his planners at $1.8 billion for the year beginning in July—stand, mainly because his analysts say it is caused by a drop in corporate income taxes brought on by the business doldrums.

Ending the surtax won't mean much to the average taxpayer—an extra 70 cents a week for four member families with $5,000 yearly incomes, $1.70 if income is $10,000—but taken together it will be a substantial economic stimulant matching the one that accompanied the January cut.

Dr. Harold C. Passer, the Commerce Department's chief economist, last week listed the expiration of the surtax as one of the major factors behind official administration forecasts of a business upturn. The others were smaller—$4 billion from higher Social Security payments and $3 billion from higher federal pay.

The cut will be especially welcome to taxpayers with incomes of $5,000, because their withholding taxes actually rose in January despite the surtax reduction.

Last year, $5.70 was deducted from weekly pay of $96.15. Since then it has been $6.10, an anomaly the Internal Revenue Service called a "quirk." It was caused, the IRS said, by bugs in the complex mathematical formulas needed to figure out the new low income allowance included in the Tax Reform Act Congress passed last December.

The Social Security laws already have provided a minor bonanza for some higher-income taxpayers, and more will be affected as the year wears on.

The taxes are collected at the rate of 4.8 per cent until they reach a maximum of $374.40 for the year. People making about $17,800 reach the limit this week, and those making $15,000 pay through July.

Anyone who makes $7,800 or less pays all year.

The Red Hook Controversy—Steps Taken to End Problem

RED HOOK It was noted at Monday night's Red Hook Village Board meeting that the property to the rear of the Orchard Hill Farms factory building which had been the site of much controversy was sold to that company in 1961 for $250.

Clerk Francis Rabbett located the minutes of that meeting at the request of Red Hook Estates resident Armando Spagnoli, reading that it was then felt that the property could be put to no good use by the village. Red Hook had purchased the property for that same price in 1939, and made no profit on the deal.

It is this property on which the residue-laden water allegedly lays, causing area residents to complain unceasingly about the unpleasant odors. Mayor Ellroy Hand noted Monday night that several steps were being taken by the factory to eliminate the problem.

The Village Board will interview two applicants for part-time patrolman duty this Saturday. Rabbett said that the two full-time patrolmen have been working "killing" hours lately.

GEORGE WALLACE . . . LAST-MINUTE BID
(UPI TELEPHOTO)

Wallace—the Stakes Are High

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

George C. Wallace, who towered over Alabama politics for six years, battled to reverse a home base setback today in a showdown Democratic runoff that could affect the shape of the 1972 presidential campaign. In eight states, from New Jersey to California, voters were choosing party nominees for the Senate, Statehouses and Congress in the year's biggest outpouring of ballots.

But nowhere were the national stakes so high as in Alabama, where Wallace sought to wrest the governorship from Albert Brewer, a one-time protégé who has become a formidable threat to his presidential campaign prospects.

Wallace trailed Brewer by 11,763 votes in the indecisive, first-round primary a month ago, although the incumbent fell far short of a majority in the seven-way race.

Precedent favors Brewer, for not in 56 years has the man who led the first primary lost a runoff. But Wallace, sidestepping questions about his future plans as a third-party presidential entry, toughened his campaign stance for the showdown contest, and put new emphasis on an old issue—race. He charged the Negro bloc vote put Brewer where he was, and declared:

"If the black bloc vote wins this election, it will have control of this state for the next 50 years."

Brewer's incumbency is a legacy of the past Wallace dominance. Barred by law from succeeding himself, Wallace entered his wife, Lurleen, in the gubernatorial race four years ago, and she won in a landslide. When she died of cancer two years later, Brewer, as lieutenant governor, succeeded to the top job.

Today's winner is assured of a four-year term as governor; Republicans have indicated they won't enter a candidate.

There are Alabama politicians who believe Wallace will go ahead with another national campaign whatever today's outcome. But a home state defeat certainly would cripple such an effort during the crucial two years ahead.

Senate nominations are being contested in four states. In Mississippi, Democratic Sen. John C. Stennis had no opposition in either party.

Republican Sen. George Murphy of California appeared headed for renomination over Norton Simon, a multimillionaire making his first political venture. Murphy had the backing of Gov. Ronald Reagan and, indirectly, President Nixon.

Two House members, John V. Tunney and George Brown Jr., locked in a close race for the Democratic Senate nomination. Both are liberals, both opposed U.S. policy in South Vietnam.

Brown the more vehemently.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield appears an easy winner over two little known rivals for Democratic renomination in Montana, Harold E. Wallace, a sporting goods salesman from Missoula, is the Republican candidate to take on the formidable Mansfield in the Nov. 3 election.

In New Mexico, Sen. Joseph M. Montoya ranks as the Democratic favorite over challenger Richard Edwards, a former state legislator from Albuquerque.

Republican Gov. David F. Cargo faces Anderson Carter, a conservative who ran a strong Senate race four years ago, for the GOP Senate nomination.

New Jersey Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. appears likely to stand off the challenge of Frank J. Guarini Jr., a state senator, in that Democratic primary. Nelson Gross, former state Republican chairman, is expected to become his party's Senate nominee.

In other major primaries:

—Reagan is unopposed for Republican nomination to seek a second term as governor of California. Jesse Unruh, former speaker of the state assembly, is favored to defeat Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty for the Democratic nomination to run against him.

Syrian Troops Cross Into Occupied Golan Heights

By United Press International
Syria said today its troops crossed into the occupied Golan Heights during the night and killed or wounded 15 Israeli soldiers in attacks on three garrisons. Tel Aviv's version reported six Arabs slain against no Israeli losses. The battle communiques were issued as Israeli warplanes went back into action this morning with a 90-minute raid against Egyptian targets along the Suez Canal following their strikes Monday against Egypt, Lebanon and Jordan. In addition, Syria said the raiders fought Israeli reinforcements headed for the scene and prevented them from achieving their mission, destroying two enemy half tracks with their personnel. Israeli said only that its front-line troops caught Syrian and Arab guerrilla patrols in the Golan Heights during the night and killed six of the intruders without a loss of their own. The Israeli-Syrian frontier fighting late Monday capped a day that saw Israel clash with all four of its Arab neighbors and warn that it expected increasing attacks to mark the third anniversary of the June, 1967 war. A communique from military headquarters in Tel Aviv said

Israeli troops along the Syrian frontier caught the guerrilla patrol at 10 p.m. near Kafr el Ma, killing four of the killed. The clashes followed Israeli air strikes Monday against Egypt's Suez Canal line and Arab guerrillas in Jordan and Lebanon. Cairo said 12 of its soldiers were killed and 18 wounded in the raids. Arab guerrilla leaders meeting in the Egyptian capital

Rogers—Dobrynin Meeting Could Decide Israel Question

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers' meeting today with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin may help determine whether the Nixon administration heeds steadily increasing congressional pressure to supply additional jet warplanes to Israel.

It will be the first Rogers-

Dobrynin meeting since the Minn., planned to introduce a resolution that would urge Nixon "to call upon the Soviet Union to withdraw all Russian Skyhawks. Scott Monday sent Rogers a letter signed by 73 senators urging immediate aid to Israel. Congressional pressure plus administration pessimism concerning the possibility of Soviet moves to ease tensions made it virtually certain, most diplomats believed, that a decision get clarified by Dobrynin. These were: —What is the intent of Moscow's action in sending its sophisticated new Soviet F-15 instead of having each group operate independently.

Quake Toll Put at 1,000; More Lima Jolts

LIMA (UPI)—Landslides and floods blocked rescue efforts to reach devastated cities today in Northern Peru, where the government estimated the death toll in Sunday's earthquake at 1,000. More aftershocks jolted Lima.

The government said it was impossible to give a firm count of casualties because many of the hardest hit areas were inaccessible due to destroyed highways and air strips.

A spokesman for the National Information Office said Monday night the government believed there were about 1,000 dead and

5,000 seriously injured. It was Peru's worst earthquake disaster of the century. The government discounted reports that as many as 30,000 could have died, calling them "completely false."

Two women Peace Corps volunteers were reported killed in the Andean city of Huaraz and two Catholic nuns from the United States were said to have died in the fishing village of Chimbote.

Huaraz, a city of 80,000 nestled in a semicircle of deep cracks in the towering mountains 180 miles northeast of Lima, could not be reached Monday but ham radio reports said 90 per cent of the houses were destroyed. Chimbote, 260 miles north of Lima, was accessible by water and President Juan Velasco ro, 20, of Santiago, Chile. "The Alvarado went there for a first-hand look aboard a navy boat. He took doctors and nurses and brought back 200 seriously injured persons. Residents poked through the rubble of thousands of homes in Chimbote looking for their belongings. The quake opened of Pittsburgh and Sister Edith Pan Mary, no known address, were killed in the quake. Both were from the San Jose Order.

Four young tourists from Canada, Switzerland and Chile pitched in to help the people of Casma. "We can't leave Casma," said Michael Cabelle, 20, of Santiago, Chile. "The people here need our help."

Many of Casma's 10,000 inhabitants stood as if dazed in the streets, looking at the demolished homes and buildings. A priest operating a radio in Chimbote said Sister Gabriella of Pittsburgh and Sister Edith Pan Mary, no known address, were killed in the quake. Both were from the San Jose Order.

The B52s and Cambodia— Only to Protect GIs in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has raised the possibility B52 bombers might be used in Cambodia after June 30 if such missions are felt necessary to protect American troops in South Vietnam.

But, officials have ruled out any tactical air support for the South Vietnamese in Cambodia after that deadline for the withdrawal of American troops.

This word came as President Nixon worked on a Cambodian progress report to be carried on nationwide television and radio Wednesday at 9 p.m. EDT.

Presidential press secretary

Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters in San Clemente, Calif., Monday all U.S. troops, as well as logistical and air support for the South Vietnamese would be withdrawn from Cambodia June 30 as President Nixon had said earlier.

But Ziegler emphasized that "U.S. air action would be in relation to the security of the U.S. forces in South Vietnam" and he did not rule out the use of the strategic bombers in this role.

It was not known whether President Nixon would get into the question of air support or protective bombing in the Wednesday speech.

White House aides have said the 15-minute address will relate to accomplishments in the month-old Cambodian campaign and will not produce any dramatic announcements or new decisions.

Nixon returned Monday night from a four-day Memorial Day holiday in California, working on his Cambodian speech aboard Air Force One on the cross-country trip.

He planned to put in more time on it today after morning welcoming ceremonies and a meeting with visiting Venezuelan President Rafael Caldera.

The President will make the speech in prime broadcast time to present what he says are encouraging reports from military commanders on progress in Cambodia and Vietnam.

The speech also comes within a few hours of when the Senate takes its first important test vote on proposals to curb Nixon's powers to use U.S. troops in Indochina.

Senate Democrats and Republicans predict, however, Nixon's talk will not cut into the expected support for the Cooper-Church amendment to bar funds for Cambodian military operations after June 30.

As the President worked on his speech, a new move was started in the House, led by Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, to limit military spending in Southeast Asia by attaching a curb on Nixon's proposals to increase the debt limit from the present $377 to $395 billion.

Several previous House efforts to restrict Nixon's moves in Indochina have failed.

The White House views on U.S. air activities in Cambodia came from Ziegler during a briefing with reporters in San Clemente that was at times confusing and drew sharp questioning, some of which the President's press secretary termed "belligerent."

He said, "We are reserving comment on what actions the United States will take on air support following June 30. We have said any action would be in relation to security of American forces in South Vietnam."

He seemed to be echoing what top Pentagon officials have been saying recently: That after June 30 the South Vietnamese air force is expected to provide the close support needed for its troops in any future Cambodian activities. And that U.S. air power used in Cambodia after July 1 probably will center on bombing enemy supply routes and concentrations as has been done on the Ho Chi Minh Trail that runs through Laos.

Ziegler tried to stay away from any specific statements himself.

"I'm not going to discuss operations of ARVN (Army of the Republic of South Vietnam) forces beyond June 30 or what actions the United States might take in terms of air support beyond the June 30 deadline."

He added, "U.S. air support following June 30 would relate to the security of U.S. forces in South Vietnam. That is pretty clear. That does not suggest TAC (tactical air) support of ARVN forces in Cambodia."

Battle on Secrecy Label

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle has developed in the House over a secrecy label placed on four hours of testimony by Secretary of State William P. Rogers in which he reportedly told a subcommittee he opposed sending American troops into Cambodia.

Nearly all the secretary's testimony, seven days before President Nixon's April 30 announcement of the U.S. attack into Cambodia, was deleted when the official transcript of the session was released Monday.

"Parts of this testimony may have been embarrassing to the executive branch, but national security—not embarrassment—is the standard we have set for classifying information in our record," said Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass.

Conte, in a dissent signed by six other members of the House foreign aid appropriations subcommittee, accused Chairman Otto E. Passman, D-La., of allowing Rogers to delete almost all his testimony from the public transcript.

The censored version contained only the opening statement in which Rogers outlined most of the administration's $9 billion foreign aid request.

Both Passman and the subcommittee's senior Republican, Frank T. Bow of Ohio, defended the decision to delete four hours of discussion about Indochina.

"We're in a hot war," Passman said. "And if they say it should come out, as far as I'm concerned, it will come out."

Said Bow: "Publishing dated testimony that would only add to the existing confusion on this decision is hardly in the public interest."

Rogers reportedly told the subcommittee: "We recognize that if we escalate and we get involved in Cambodia with our ground troops that our whole program is defeated. Our whole motivation is the other way."

Khrushchev Hospitalized

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, 70, has been hospitalized with a burst blood vessel and will probably be confined indoors for two or three weeks, sources close to his family said today.

His condition was not considered dangerous. It is a condition usually treated at home. But no chances are taken with important persons who are put under doctors' care at the Kremlin Hospital where Khrushchev was sent.

Despite its name, the hospital is not located inside the Kremlin. It is a large medical institution with centers at several different places in the city.

Albany Woman Killed

COLONIE, N.Y. (UPI) — Elizabeth Murray, 98, of Albany was killed and seven other persons injured Monday in a two-car crash, police in this suburban Albany town reported.

CLEAR, PRESENT DANGER — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, poses outside the Senate chamber where she delivered a speech warning that the "clear and present danger" to American democracy is the potential "reaction of repression" to the violence of the radical left by extremists on the political right. She made the speech on the anniversary of her "declaration of conscience" speech against Sen. Joseph McCarthy delivered 20 years ago today. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

The Non-Dissenters

College Commencement across the country has a special significance this year. In a very large measure, it is the march of the non-dissenters. The graduates are the students who went to college to get an education, not to disrupt the schools they attended. Their appearance in massive area of cap and gown should reassure the country about the coming generation. For they are living evidence of the great majority—the non-dissenters in the colleges and universities of the land.

At the same time, wary administrators were taking what they call "normal" security precautions. They have campus police standing by, just in case. They were not ready to believe that the dissenters, who disrupted campuses in recent weeks, would overlook the opportunity for nationwide notoriety offered by possible disruptions of graduation ceremonies.

At the University of Maryland, where the National Guard has been on campus following disruptive attacks, the Guard is expected to remain through the June 6 commencement. The university administration is taking no chances on a renewal that would disrupt the proceedings.

There are some exceptions to this pleasant picture. The failure of David Eisenhower to attend his commencement at Amherst College and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, to attend her graduation exercises at nearby Smith College, for fear they would arouse demonstrations, is a prime example. They were robbed of one of the great moments of their young lives.

By and large, however, the nation's colleges and universities kept their fingers crossed. They knew the great majority was graduating after the required studies, but there was always the fear that outside radicals would seize the occasion to agitate the disruptive student element. They prayed they would be spared that.

Paying the Pipers

One of the most tragic manifestations of the protest movement by the intransigent elements of college students has been the wanton destruction on campus, the looting, burning and blasting of buildings.

Some say these acts are Communist-inspired. Whether or not they are, if all this waste and destruction actually had been planned in Moscow, the Reds couldn't have done a better job in sowing the seeds of hate, violence and distrust.

And now comes a development which we feel few students ever anticipated, assuming of course that students are seriously interested in continuing their quest for knowledge.

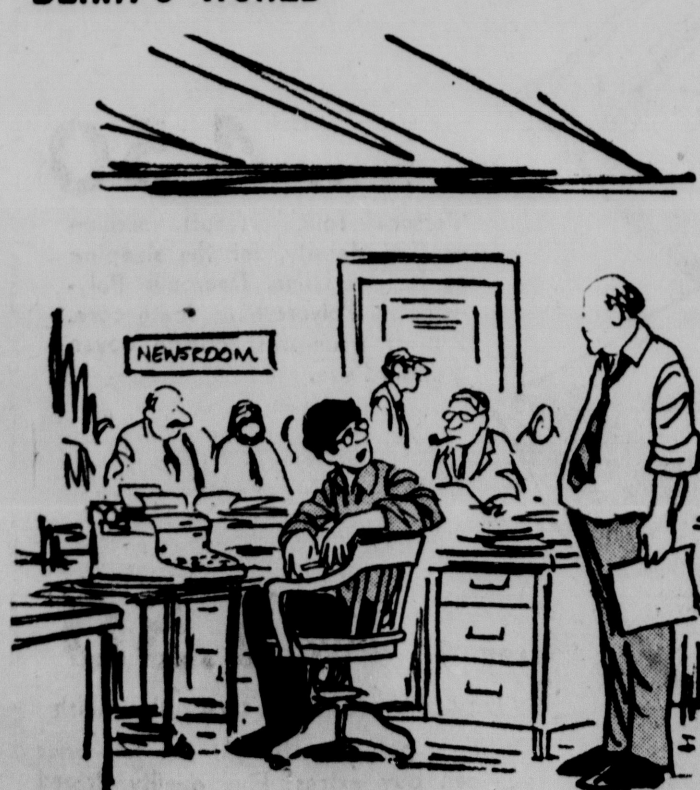

As a result of campus riots, fire insurance has become increasingly expensive and difficult to obtain for colleges and universities. Some rates have been increased as much as five times and in other instances, companies no longer are insuring colleges.

One example cited was at the University of California where the value of buildings on its nine campuses has been set at $1 billion. Under the old rate, this cost $200,000 for three years. Under the new rate, the bill will be more than $1 million.

Counsel for the insurance association noted that the whole mechanism is based on the law of probability, meaning the risk that normally can be expected. Unfortunately, therefore, the increases make sense. But who's going to pay these increases. Certainly some if not all of the cost will be passed on in the form of tuition hikes.

So maybe the price of insuring against fires will cool the heat and passions of the hot-tempered students where logic and pleas for moderation have failed.

Henry J. Taylor Says Soviet-Red China Conflict

An undisclosed CIA breakthrough in Irkutsk, the capital of Eastern Siberia, and confirmed by its agents in Peking, puts the potential Soviet-Red China conflict in a startling new light that is clearly causing the Kremlin to burn the midnight oil.

Irkutsk is 3,225 miles and five time zones from Moscow and it's still another 1,500 miles to the Pacific, but Irkutsk polarizes the Kremlin's Far East position.

The guts of the confirmed revelation is the Soviet problem of Manchuria — Manchuria as distinguished from the main body of Mao Tse-tung's Red China.

Manchuria, due north of Korea, prods up into the Soviet Union like the rounded ram. A glance at a map eastward on an immense battering ram shows how Manchuria looks to the U.S.S.R. and a glance at Manchuria's history completes the picture.

Ever since 1853 Russia has tried to be a dominant power on the Pacific. She dominated indispensable Manchuria by 1900. Then she lost Manchuria in her disastrous war with Japan in 1905. In 1910 Russia and Japan partitioned the country, but by 1935 Japan controlled it. Then, with our 1945 American defeat of Japan, the U.S.S.R. reseeded Manchuria.

The Kremlin achieved this through Mao Tse-tung and thus achieved what the American Security Council's respected strategist, Stefan T. Possony, calls "history's fourth Manchuria-based conquest of China." But in the bitter rupture with Mao the egg has hit the fan.

It is impossible for Russia to be a truly world power without tremendous strength in the Far East. The CIA breakthrough in Irkutsk reveals that the Kremlin sees Manchuria (not the body of Mao's China) as the real stake and looks upon Russia as Superman trapped in a milk bottle without Manchuria.

The Peking government divides Red China into six economic regions. Manchuria leads them all in electric power, steel, gold, oil, machine tool, etc., output. Although only fifth in area and population (50 million), it is first in industrial production. Economically and militarily, Mao's China is literally nothing without this compact ram that prods up into Russia.

Now, enter the increasing Kremlin problem of Japan. Japan, of course, is in a powerful Far Eastern upsurge. It is the greatest industrial nation in the free world next to the United States. Last November Japan also passed West Germany as the free world's second largest export-trading nation. And in the Irkutsk breakthrough our CIA agents found that the Kremlin's worries are concentrated on any rapprochement between Japan and Red China. For Russia's Far East domination hopes and plans would suffer a complete disaster if a Sino-Japanese rapprochement dominated Manchuria.

Extending from the Irkutsk headquarters, the Soviet Manchurian axis for Russia's position opposite China has always been Khabarovsk, 400 miles north of Vladivostok, the Russian-built port that blocked China from the Sea of Japan. The CIA agents find a command center has been expanded to Chobalsan, in Mongolia, only 75 miles from China's frontier.

Moreover, the expansion began long after the highly publicized border incidents in Heilungkiang Province on the Manchurian Plateau and along the Ussuri River, which is a part of the border — the longest (4,150 miles) border in the world, something like the distance from New York to Honolulu.

Our CIA agents located battle-tested Gen. Vladimir F. Tolubko and Red Army Chief of Staff Marshal Matvei Zakharov at Chobalsan. Tolubko is deputy chief of Russia's Strategic Rocket Forces and the principal adviser to the North Vietnamese in Hanoi.

Tolubko has been given a unified command of three assault groups — the infantry, the armored branch and the air force. The Kremlin normally has about 18 divisions in the area. Our agents now count 52. Nine are mechanized, and Tolubko, the rocket specialist, has moved a whole development of Soviet missiles into the area.

To us, therefore, the watchword in the Far East is not Red China. It is Manchuria. That Manchuria could involve a preventive war by the U.S.S.R. against Mao's China is not an automatic conclusion. But, based on the CIA finding, if either Russia or Red China is to pick a fight it appears that it is Russia which would do so and for the seizure of Manchuria.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The Bahama seas were deep blue and jade. The jade section was on the reefs.

Once, perhaps ten years ago, my wife caught a queen trigger. It was about two feet long, a thin, wide fish with streaks of royal blue and a deeper blue around its mouth like lipstick. Kelly called it the "Marilyn Monroe" of fish, and her blue eyes lit up, and she said it was the most feminine of fish she had ever seen.

Today we were over at the Jack Tar Hotel, near the Marina, and Kelly was home with the children. There comes a time when the lady prefers to stay home and permit the man to go fishing with the boys.

So we sailed in the Kelly — named after guess who — and we came in on the beam and made Grand Bahama, 65 miles out of Palm Beach. It wasn't an easy trip with soft seas, but Frank Sacchetti, who is a good mechanic, and Wally Lehmann, who is 74 years of age and has enough courage to believe that everything is going to be fine, aimed his weathered white head on the bows and, after four hours, spotted land.

The Bahamas number about 700 islands and it is easy to miss all of them, but we made West End in good time in a choppy sea. We hired a Bahamian mate to rip the bait, and he wanted to go for big bill fish. I had a yen for a queen trigger. We trolled up around Memory Rock, but all we got were big barracuda with teeth out to here and a couple of king mackerel.

It was good fishing and the fish box was half full, and the mate, Danny, who says he drinks too much but refused to have a beer on the boat, kept speaking from the flying bridge in that sing-song Calypso which no one but another Bahamian can understand. I tired of trolling and said I wanted a queen trigger. If my wife could catch one, I was sure I could.

"You have two depth finders," he said politely, "and you take me to 190 feet depth and I will get the trigger for you."

The depth finders were running between 500 feet and 5. It wasn't easy. I swung the Kelly southeast and arrived on an Afro haircut called Wood Key. The water, as clear and clean as distilled gin, came up 190 feet, and we took the big sea rods in and put the small spinners out.

I caught a beautiful yellowtail. It looked like a canary with fins. Wally grabbed a big horse mackerel and fought for this life. He made it. Frank got three barracuda in a row, and they were a dentist's delight. No queen trigger.

We stayed on the bottom with the light spinners, and the sea became so calm that Kelly gargled her exhausts with a sound like a basso profundo with tonsillitis. That gold bronze sun was close to setting and I caught everything but a queen trigger.

So I kept fishing. Wally Lehmann said he had the best fish — the king mackerel. I brought in some flat fish that were good-sized, but they weren't queen triggers even though our first mate kept saying they were. The Kelly, a Hatteras fiberglass boat, kept lifting and lowering her bows.

Then I got a good hook on a fish and — arthritis and all — I pulled it in. The moment she came over the side, I saw the blue lipstick around the mouth and the blue streaks down her sides, and I knew I had a queen trigger. I hauled her in nice and slowly.

Now I had the fish my wife caught a decade ago. All I needed was a picture to prove it. I backed the boat into the marina and we threw 15 good-sized fish onto the dock. Some Canadians came off a big yacht to study the catch.

Wally got his color camera and said: "Let's take a picture of the whole bunch." I wanted to say: "Take a shot of this queen trigger so that I'll have some proof when I get home." Lehmann lined the fish up. There was no thrill for me because, while I enjoy catching fish, I don't like to eat them. Nor them, me.

Wally moved the fish around the dock. Frank put on his big Eyetalian smile. The queen trigger slid off the dock and into the water. That turned out to be a bye-bye. Tomorrow we head for Florida.

Lehmann, of course, is swimming back . . .

Jack Anderson Says

Few Key Americans to Stay In Cambodia After Pullout

WASHINGTON — A few key Americans will remain in Cambodia, keeping as inconspicuous as possible, after President Nixon's July 1 deadline for a U.S. pullout. Here's what is happening behind the scenes:

1. The U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, is expanding into more spacious quarters on Mao Tse-tung Boulevard. Since the embassy was reopened last August, the staff slowly has built up from three to 25 people. A secret radio-teletype system has been installed, and three teletype operators are kept busy beeping coded messages into Manila for transmittal to Washington.

2. My assistant Les Whitten writes from Phnom Penh that the Central Intelligence Agency has now established "a shadowy presence" in Cambodia. President Nixon has assured skeptical congressional leaders at secret briefings that the CIA had absolutely nothing to do with the overthrow of Prince Sihanouk and that no CIA agents were operating inside Cambodia at that time. But now the CIA has pushed its nose under the tent.

3. An officer high in the U.S. chain of command acknowledged to Whitten that American advisers will move "in and out" of the South Vietnamese divisions that stay in Cambodia — "unless we're specifically countermanded." The officer felt, clearly, that none of the existing orders would prohibit American advisers from slipping back into Cambodia any time they might be needed by the South Vietnamese.

The need for better communications between Phnom Penh and Washington had become critical before the war spread into Cambodia. Lloyd Rives, the American Charge d'Affaires, had been sending his messages over a makeshift Cambodian land line and radio circuit.

Communications Breakdown Storms broke it down twice, once for six hours and again for 18 hours, and the bony Rives was out in the winds trying to juggle the wires into working with a stick. During the crucial period of Sihanouk's ouster, the communications broke down again.

Rives asked British Ambassador Harold A. N. Brown, a stuffy silver-haired diplomat of the old school, to transmit a message to London for forwarding to Washington. The American wanted to let the State Department know at least that he was on the job.

The distinguished Britisher, who had courted Sihanouk and was grumpy over his fall, rewrote the American message and incorporated it into the British report. The breach of grace was more serious than the diplomatic damage. The sense of the U.S. message was preserved, but the style was highly "Englishized."

The exasperated Rives appealed for his own communications equipment, and shortly, a gigantic American C-130 hunkered down at Phnom Penh's airport and disgorged two heavy-duty generators.

Intelligence Hodgepodge

The intelligence that goes out over the new radio-teletype system is a mixed bag of miscellany: political interpretations from Rives and his advisers, military information from the Air Force colonel attached to the delegation, the latest rumors circulating in diplomatic circles, and reports from correspondents who stop off in Phnom Penh and spill their stories over whisky provided by the U.S. press officer, James Carrigan.

All reports, secret intelligence and barroom gossip alike, are sent out in code.

The available intelligence is somewhat limited, since the Cambodian Foreign Ministry has restricted all diplomatic personnel to Phnom Penh. The Ministry sent a confidential memo around to the heads of all missions, barring diplomats from leaving the capital, after two young embassy aides from Burma and the Philippines went to the battle zone near Takeo. Their car stalled, and they got it started barely in time to escape a brisk firefight.

U.S. Army and Navy attaches are expected momentarily in Phnom Penh to assist in collecting military information. What they pick up around town, however, isn't likely to be too reliable.

The Cambodians have demonstrated a whimsical tendency to romanticize the achievements of their willing but unready Army and to exaggerate the communist menace. One Viet Cong, who might be spotted in an area, is likely to be multiplied by 100 or even 1,000 by the time the report reaches Phnom Penh.

The White House is quietly studying ways to keep future demonstrations under control. Aides are investigating how countries that have had more experience with violent demonstrations, such as France and Japan, handle riot control.

The French, for example, use water hoses which have been remarkably effective in dampening down the demonstrators without causing serious injury.

Another proposal is to send mobile violence control units to demonstrations to calm the demonstrators and prevent violence. The units would be manned by psychologists trained in crowd control. Presidential aides also are discussing a move taken by Communist China whose Red Guards set the style for youthful rampages. Mao Tse-tung has ruled that the Red Guards must now pay the government for all the damage they cause during the cultural revolution.

In some cases, they are being pressed into work battalions which are cleaning up the mess. In other cases, they simply have been presented with bills for the damage and threatened with imprisonment if they don't pay up. Some White House aides think this might be a good method to adopt in the United States.

Buckley Looks Like Upset Winner in Senate Election

By CHARLES DUMAS

Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) —

Conservative party nominee James L. Buckley suddenly has begun to look like a potential upset winner of the U.S. Senate election to many political pros in New York State.

Conceding that they just woke up and smelled the coffee, the most astute operatives in the Republican and Democratic parties acknowledge that events could propel Buckley to a surprise victory.

Their reasoning is that, given a choice between the GOP and Democratic nominees, large segments of the electorate may decide that they have no choice at all and thus will turn to Buckley, who is expected to take a rally-round-the-flag stance.

Their rationale is built on these factors:

— The Republican and Liberal parties have nominated incumbent Republican Charles E. Goodell, known principally for his sharp turn to the left since Gov. Rockefeller plucked him from his Jamestown-area congressional seat to fill the late Robert F. Kennedy's seat. Goodell has antagonized many orthodox Republicans through his "dovish" attacks on President Nixon's Indo-China war policies.

— Democrats will choose their Senate nominee in the June 23 primary, from among four aspirants, each of whom is a vocal critic of Nixon's conduct on the war.

— Conservative-minded Republican, Democratic and independent voters, that is those who frown on the activities of the strident "peaceniks", will be unable to identify either with Goodell or the Democratic nominee. Voting for Buckley will be their only outlet for expressing disapproval of the anti-war element.

Buckley, a brother of right-wing columnist James F. Buckley, appears all the more formidable to the political pros because he attracted a raft of votes in his only previous run for public office, in 1968.

He became the Conservative party's all-time champion votegetter by polling 1.2 million votes in a race for the U.S. Senate against Republican Jacob K. Javits and Democrat Paul O'Dwyer. Javits, who also had the Liberal nomination, drew 3.3 million votes to O'Dwyer's 2.2 million on the Democratic line.

Many observers believed that O'Dwyer lost the votes of conservative Democrats by basing almost his entire campaign on his opposition to the Vietnam war. Their presumption is that the votes went either to Buckley, who took a support-your-fighting-men line, or to Javits, who soft-pedaled the issue.

But Goodell is no Javits. He has attempted to take the lead in senatorial harrassment of Nixon's war policies and has identified himself publicly with the tumultuous dissent of the college crowd, which has exasperated many middle-class Americans.

GOP leaders confide that many a party member, including a wide variety of grass-roots Republican leaders, have vowed to vote for "anyone except Goodell."

But a Democrat?

Their choice lies among O'Dwyer, bidding again for the Senate nomination and still sniping at the war, or such anti-war aspirants as former White House Aide Theodore C. Sorensen and U.S. Reps. Richard L. Ottinger and Richard D. Max McCarthy.

Ottinger himself conceded last week that Buckley could win the general election if O'Dwyer should turn out to be the nominee. "He's a one-issue candidate," Ottinger said, "and the voters would have no choice."

As for himself, Ottinger says he would offer a broader appeal, based on his record of championing efforts to abate environmental pollution and his support of federal tax reform. McCarthy boasts of his opposition to chemical warfare, while Sorensen's chief claim seems to be his close association with the late President John F. Kennedy.

But all four of the candidates are conspicuous critics of the war — and of Nixon. Those who disagree, the pros say, will have only one recourse — to vote for Buckley.

This could mean that Goodell and the Democratic nominee will divide the anti-war vote, while Buckley picks up all the rest. And there just might be enough "hawk" or "anti-peacenik" votes to carry him to victory.

Heat on Nixon to Bolster Economy

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — This reporter is convinced that in the next several months President Nixon will be forced to take strong steps to improve the unhappy economic situation.

There are six compelling reasons for this conclusion: Nixon personally is certain that President Eisenhower's failure to take the necessary steps to ease tight money in 1960 was a major factor in Nixon losing his bid for the presidency that year.

Top Nixon political advisers have already warned him the domestic economy — not Vietnam or Cambodia — will be the central issue in November's elections.

Nixon desperately needs more hackers in the Senate and House next year if he is to get some of his major domestic and foreign programs through Congress and get some easing of congressional criticism of the war and his over-all foreign policy.

A failure here would jeopardize his own re-election chances in 1972.

Yet Republican gains are difficult at best in an off-year election, when a president's party traditionally loses. Republican Senate and House gains would be next to impossible if this nation is still in the economic doldrums in early November.

The major thrust in Nixon's attack on the problems of the nation's blacks is aimed at employment. Yet when national unemployment rises and men and women are laid off in sizable numbers, it is inevitably the blacks who suffer most — especially the young blacks.

Nixon's domestic advisers have told him that sharply rising unemployment among Negro youths could lead to a recurrence of "frustration rioting" in the big city slums. One thing Nixon does not want now, or any time during his administration, is a recurrence of big-city riots.

There are millions of small and medium shareholders these days. Almost all have votes.

Corporation profits are down 10 per cent from last year's peak. This means a hefty cut in tax revenues. If corporation profits continue to slide, it will mean fewer jobs and less investment in new plants and in new enterprises.

A hold-down in the growth of the economy — if it continues too long (while personal income in the aggregate continues at high levels) — will build such a great level of pent-up demand that an overboom will be likely when the economy recovers, leading to new inflationary distortions greater than Nixon is attempting to correct.

LAW DAY IN ULSTER—Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis (R) was guest speaker on Law Day 1970 for the Town of Ulster Kiwanis Club. Discussing program with the justice (L) are Edgar P. Elliott, town superintendent of highways and Fred Wadnola, Kiwanis president.

Regional Meetings on Accounting

KINGSTON: A series of 19 regional meetings are being scheduled with one set for Ulster, Dutchess, Greene and Putnam counties at Dutchess Community College, July 13 and 14.

The system of modern budgeting procedures was developed by the comptroller's office in framework of a sound fiscal structure," Levitt said.

"The new system places responsibility for preparing a tentative town budget on a budget officer, rather than on the already administratively burdened town board. Not only town administrators, but also the general public will be aided by a clearer, more uniform presentation of town financial operations," the Comptroller said.

"Any public endeavor requires public support, and public support rests upon public understanding," Levitt said.

Town supervisors, comptrollers, budget officers, private accountants engaged by towns and others involved in financial matters also will be invited to the meetings.

List Committees For Demo Dinner

ELLENVILLE: State Comptroller Arthur Levitt will be the guest speaker. Stoeckler said the County Chairman Aaron E. Klein will serve as master of ceremonies and Lawrence Woerner, Lawrence Kitchart and Edward Porcelli will serve on the dinner committee.

Ernest L. Smith is chairman of the journal committee and is being assisted by Joseph I. Epstein, Kay Quick, Charlotte Woods, Elizabeth Gleason, George Gleason, James Gilpatrick, George Barthel and Robert Gorsline. Mrs. Florence Klein is in charge of hostesses.

Thomas Lyle is in charge of the patron tickets and Peggy Johnson is in charge of the ticket committee. Publicity is being handled by Frank Adams and awards by Marie Gorsline.

Serving on the reception committee are Rose Hogan, chairman; Stanley Petro Jr. and Anthony Koenig.

Decorations will be by Erika Hinchey and Larry Thornton.

Levitt was reelected to his fourth consecutive term as comptroller in 1966. His plurality of 1.6 million votes was the greatest ever achieved by any candidate for statewide office in New York. It marked him, for the third successive general election, the only Democrat to be elected to state office.

Associated with civic, cultural and philanthropic efforts, Levitt has received many awards for outstanding civic service including the Man of the Year award from Brooklyn B'nai B'rith, the Brandeis University Citation for Community Service, the annual award of the Association for the Help of Retarded Children, the New York Daily Mirror Annual Youth Award and the New York Urban League award. He was awarded honorary doctorates from Albany Law School, Siena College and Yeshiva University.

Taste what it does to a Highball.

Aid Below Nixon Request

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Appropriations Committee Monday approved a $1.6 billion foreign aid bill for next fiscal year, 5 per cent less than President Nixon's request of $2.2 billion.

Nixon, limited by last year's congressionally imposed ceiling on foreign aid spending, had asked for the smallest amount since the program was begun after World War II.

In other action Monday: The House approved by voice vote a resolution that will permit six congressmen to go to Switzerland this month for the International Labor Organization. Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, protested the trip was a "junket."

The House passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate a bill that would authorize $270,000 for purchase and remodeling of a three-story building next door to Ford's Theatre, where Lincoln was assassinated. The theater would be designated as a National Historic Site.

The House Rules Committee

refused to permit amendments to be attached to a bill that would lift the ceiling on the national debt by $1 billion. The bill will come to the floor for debate Wednesday.

Doctor, Nurse Save Life of Stricken Man

ROSENDALE — During the VFW Memorial Day parade in Rosendale on Saturday, Charles George of Rosendale suffered a cardiac arrest.

George had marched approximately 1½ miles of the two mile parade route when he suddenly collapsed. Dr. Herbert Weinman of New Paltz, who was marching two rows behind George, checked his pulse and respiration and found that he had none. Dr. Weinman immediately began administering closed-heart massage to the stricken man while a nearby ambulance was summoned. On the way to the Kingston Hospital Dr. Weinman continued the massage, and was a lesson not to assume that Barbara West, a nurse who had a person who passes out in a been watching the parade from parade has only fainted. He the sidewalk, gave Charles added that respiration and pulse mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, should always be checked and, Dr. Weinman said that George's if none is found, the persons heart started beating again life can be saved with the about half way to the hospital, medical techniques such as Dr. Weinman said that this those he and Nurse West used.

Confrontation Ends in Jail For Seven Tree Protectors

WEST WINFIELD, N.Y. (UPI)—The residents said the trees were beautiful. The State Transportation Department officials said the trees were a hazard. The confrontation Monday ended with seven residents arrested and the trees cut down. Seven persons — six of them women — were charged with obstructing governmental administration after they took to the street and up into the trees — along Route 20 in this Herkimer County community — to try to block the work crew.

All were freed in $25 bail following their arraignment before town of Winfield Justice Robert R. Greene.

The trees involved in the dispute line the north side of the highway, were situated 3-4 feet from the edge of the pavement and constituted a safety hazard, officials said.

Many in the crowd of more than 100 protesters were pupils from the local high school. Some of the demonstrators climbed into the trees to prevent them from being cut.

State police made the arrests after Bernard M. Evans, regional director of the Transportation Department, signed a complaint. Troopers said they moved in after the seven refused an order to disband. A spokesman said the seven were apprehended after the cutting began because to allow them to stay would have "invited injury."

Priest Pleads Insane Before Federal Judge

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Roman Catholic priest stood before the federal judge and claimed insanity. He said anyone who professed his political beliefs must be insane under the law.

Father N.J. Riddell, 40, a Carmelite priest from Milwaukee, Wis., and 10 other persons are on trial for ransacking a South Side Selective Service Office last year and fueling a bonfire with the draft records of thousands of young men.

Father Riddell did not stop with declaring himself mentally ill. Three of the other defendants are as insane as he, he testified.

Take Linda Quint, 23, Chicago. She shows "mentally deviant behavior," Father Riddell testified, because she wears an old Army shirt, a plain skirt and an old pair of shoes, and thinks the American system is racist.

Is "Mentally Deviant" Or William Durkin, 20, Milwaukee. He is "mentally deviant" because he has no money and sleeps on the floor of an agency where he works with the indigent in a Skid Row area of Milwaukee, the priest said.

His testimony was part of a legal play—believed to be the first of its kind—intended to back up the plea of innocent for reason of insanity for those accused of illegal acts of protest.

Lawyers for Father Riddell, Miss Quint, Durkin and Edward Gargan, 19, Milwaukee—four of the "Chicago 11"—contend their clients ransacked the Chicago draft office May 25, 1969, and destroyed records "with no feeling of wrongdoing," and thus were legally insane at the time.

Summons Expert Witnesses The defense has summoned a string of expert witnesses to testify about what is normal and what is deviant in a society. But prosecution objections have forced most of this testimony to be delivered while the jurors were out of the courtroom.

In addition, defense attorneys are trying to provide a supplemental strain of evidence in efforts to show that the four defendants fear an impending nuclear war to such an extent that their actions at the draft office were in self defense.

The prosecution has not taken such tactics lying down. Assistant U.S. Attorneys Howard M. Hoffman and Richard Makarski demanded that a court-appointed psychiatrist examine Father Riddell, Miss Quint, Durkin and Gargan. These have been scheduled.

The other seven defendants are represented by different lawyers, but at least one has indicated he may also enter a plea of insanity.

their stores with all the double parking and trucks loading and unloading.

A speaker commented that the public hearing was just a "waste of time" if the board had already made up its mind, although several stated their confidence in the open-mindedness of the board. When the motion was made to adopt the proposal one person said, "It seems the board had already made up its mind." After the motion was seconded, several residents against the proposal walked out and the board granted its unanimous approval to a temporary one-way street pattern. According to Lawrence

Eyes, village manager, signs will be installed and the proposal should go into effect by June 15 on a temporary basis.

Mayor Robert Dowling, with the board's approval, signed a contract between the Village of Ellenville and the Ellenville Employee Association and also a contract between the village and the Police Benevolent Association.

Within one or two weeks, there will be an employment office in Ellenville offering "job placement service."

June 7 will be "Abe Rand night," in honor of the former chief of police who retired last month.

Crest Moves to Sea VIENNA (UPI)—The Danube crest moved slowly eastward toward the Black Sea today, leaving behind flooded harbor installations in Romanian river ports.

Agrepres, the Romanian news agency, reported flooding in the ports of Turnu Severin and Turnu Magurele.

Work crews assisted by volunteers and army units strengthened dikes to protect factories and farmlands from the floods.

Denies Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government's top health officer, Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, has denied there is a moral problem in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) health programs.

"You know," Egeberg told a House commerce subcommittee hearing Monday, "they all have to bitch a little but I don't think that's a morale problem."

SALT Negotiators Hold 13th Session

VIENNA (UPI)—American and Russian negotiators at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) met for an hour and 40 minutes today with the direction of their secrecy covered deliberations growing clearer.

The 13th session of SALT was held at the Soviet Embassy. The talks, which began here April 16, were believed to be in their last month now. A recess is expected in late June or early July before they are resumed in Helsinki in the autumn.

Security surrounding the talks has been so thorough that no outsider knows the details of the two-weekly meetings. But enough has become known through reports by source here and in Washington to give a picture of the trend: —Both sides have agreed on the need for a limitation on antiballistic missile (ABM) defensive systems. This is the most fertile area of agreement to appear and an agreement "in principle"—with no details spelled out—may be ready for announcement when the talks recess here the likeliest event. —If the ABM limitation is reached, possibilities exist for a ban on deployment—but not on development and testing—of MIRV (multiple independent reentry vehicle) offensive missiles. MIRV was developed to penetrate any ABM defenses and it is hoped that, if ABM is limited, the need for MIRV will disappear.

—A limitation, possibly at current levels, on the number of strategic missiles each superpower may have.

—Verification, or inspection, of any agreement will be a serious obstacle later but has not been a major topic so far.

Youths Have Double Date With the Law

KINGSTON — Two youths cited early Monday night for vehicle and traffic law violations were released pending city court appearance, but a few hours later two eagle-eyed officers who had issued the earlier summonses spotted the pair again and filed additional charges.

Stephen Grassi, 21, of 89 Hone Street, was committed to jail in lieu of $200 bail pending court appearance and Michael R. Mentessi, 19, of 37 Adams Street, was held in $50 bail.

Shortly after 6 p.m., Patrolmen Larry Stead and B.A. Schwerdtfeger were on patrol on Broadway when they stopped a car at Liberty Street for a routine check. The occupants were identified as Grassi and Mentessi.

The officers cited Grassi, who identified himself with a registration at first as Harry P. Valk Jr., 25, of Rt. 1, Box 313, Saugerties, was summoned for corrective lenses violation. Mentessi was cited for being an unsupervised learner.

Later, Stead and Schwerdtfeger spotted the car again with the same two occupants. This time Mentessi was summoned for another charge of being an unsupervised learner and unsafe driver.

Police booked Grassi who had used the name of Valk earlier, on charges of criminal impersonation, using a registration obtained unlawfully, and using a license obtained unlawfully, being an unlicensed instructor and unauthorized use of another's license.

Mentessi was also charged with having an open bottle of alcoholic beverage in the car.

Culhane, McGivern— Goes on Later Today

KINGSTON—Trial in the murder of a 63-year-old William Fitzgerald of North Tarrytown during a shoot-out in which the defendant and a third prisoner, Robert Bowerman, made an unsuccessful escape try. Bowerman also was fatally wounded. It was learned that Culhane and McGivern told the judge they wanted new counsel to represent them at trial. After hearing the plea of the defendants, Judge Mino assigned the attorneys who had represented the pair. Paul Vladimir for Culhane and Joshua Koplovitz for McGivern.

Safety Commission Releases Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional penny-pinching and bureaucratic sluggishness have created a facade of consumer protection but no realistic program, the National Commission on Product Safety was told today.

"One consequence of these conditions has been widespread public deception," declared a special report prepared for the commission by Howard A. Heffron, former law professor at the University of Washington.

"Contrary to broad public expectations, urgent problems of product safety are not being handled," the report said. "If these conditions persist, the agencies will serve mainly to in-

LEGAL NOTICE

"MEDICAID" PATIENT COST SHARING

Effective June 1, 1970, the Medical Assistance (Medicaid) identification blue card and/or green slip issued by the Ulster County Department of Social Services will no longer be valid after May 31, 1970. The Ulster County Department of Social Services will not be responsible for charges for medical services rendered holders of blue cards and/or green slips after May 31, 1970.

Effective June 1, 1970, those persons found eligible for benefits under Medical Assistance for Needy Persons (Medicaid) in Ulster County, in accordance with the Social Services Law of New York State, will be issued a YELLOW COLORED pastebord identification card.

The yellow identification card will indicate "A," "B," "C," "D," or "E" coverage.

"A" and "B" Medicaid coverage means the person will NOT be responsible for any portion of the cost of approved or eligible medical or dental service under the program.

"B" coverage for a family group or individual means that the person will be responsible for 50% (twenty per cent) of the cost of any approved and/or eligible out-patient medical or dental care, INCLUDING drugs, office calls to doctors, dentists and other approved providers of service. Persons with "B" coverage must pay the provider of service 20% (twenty per cent) of the cost of out-patient services. Medicaid will be responsible for 80% (eighty per cent) of out-patient services.

In-patient care in a medical institution is available to all persons who have any Medicaid coverage. "A," "B," "C," "D," or "E" without COST SHARING.

Out-patient services are not available to those persons having "C," "D," or "E" Medicaid coverage at any time.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened higher in moderately active trading today.

The market may pause for profit taking following four consecutive sharp advances. One analyst said the "logical thing" would be for stocks to run into profit taking. But he added that the optimism, which began last week, continued to feed on itself Monday, just as pessimism fed on itself during the recent protracted decline. This, he suggested, could indicate that the rally still has further to go.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI marketwide indicator showed a gain of 0.59 per cent on 312 issues on the tape. Advances outnumbered declines, 161 to 67.

International Paper opened up 1/4 to 32 1/2, while Bristol-Myers gained 1/4 to 51 1/4 and General Telephone 1/4 to 25 1/4. Teledyne picked up 1/4 to 20 1/4. American Telephone dipped 1/4 to 44 1/4. Hewlett-Packard spurted 2 1/4 to 34 1/4.

Penn Central gained 1/4 to 13 1/4 in the rails, while Allied Chemical added 1/4 to 19 1/4 among the chemicals. Du Pont surrendered 1/4 to 114 1/4.

In the automotive group, General Motors dipped 1/4 to 66 1/4. Chrysler rose 1/4 to 23.

Beverly Enterprises in Strong Growth Area

Q—What is causing the weakness in Beverly Enterprises? I would appreciate knowing whether to hold or take my loss. —C.D.

A—These shares have recently been among the most actively traded on the American Exchange, dropping about 20 points. In addition to general market weakness, BEV has been subject to pressure from fears that the government's proposed changes in Medicare and Medicaid will hurt nursing-home operators.

There has been no fundamental weakness in company operations. Beverly has maintained an aggressive expansion policy, and in fact announced in January that it was planning five acquisitions involving 15 additional extended-care facilities. The company also operates a chain of retail pharmacies in California.

For the nine months ended September, 1969, revenues advanced 68% year-to-year, while income jumped 127% on wider margins. Share earnings, on a greater number of shares outstanding, were 55 cents versus 27 cents the previous year. Management has estimated that earnings for 1969 would be 75 cents a share, with $1.10-$1.20 looked for this year.

Harmful effects of any probable government action have been fully discounted at recent share levels. Long-range prospects in the health-care field justify retention of these shares.

Q—Since the recent ruling to increase the minimum denomination of Treasury bills up to $10,000 has frozen out the small investor, what about Treasury notes? How are these purchased? What maturities and interest rates are available? —L.B. & B.S.

A—No cash offering of Treasury notes has been made since August, 1968. Recent financing has been through exchange offerings to holders of expiring notes. Maturities on notes, which are available in $1,000 denominations, are restricted to not less than one year nor more than seven.

Actively traded on the open market, notes are available in maturities of one month to 7

Group Show on Saturday

The Young People's Studio of Woodstock will hold a group show on the weekend of June 6-7, 1970 at the Studio, Tinker Street, Woodstock. The show will feature works by the students of Lynn Silberstang.

Mrs. Silberstang has taught at the Studio for the last eight months, and all the students will be represented. The following students' works will be shown: Kare Adamschack, Helena Baldyga, Holly Barnett, Candy Barnett, Kathy Baston, Judith Beckerman, Peter Berge, Jim Brown, Rita Buoymaster, Jim Burke, Zeld Camhi, Gloria Dickenson, Cynthia Gaffney, Ben Hilgers, Judy Kamen, Jonathan Kane, Bambe Marlin, Lorraine Merch, Barara Morse, Vivian Nina Schultz, Catherine Simonetti, Janice Sparks, Donna Warnecke, Alice Weidman and Toy Yelvington.

Lynn Silberstang is enthusiastic about the work of these students. Most of them had never painted before. Many claimed they lacked talent, but the works of art speak for themselves.

Lynn Silberstang is a resident of Woodstock, and is a professional artist. She is a graduate of Columbia University, where she studied with such well known figures in the art world as Meyer Shapiro, Peter Agostini, and Avram Kampf.

Dr. Kampf, a former trustee of the Jewish Museum of New York, presently director of Art at Haifa and Tel Aviv Universities, Israel, as well as Professor of Art History, Columbia University, has written of her work "What Hopper gave in a quites grim, gray and tragic tone, she gives in an interesting, almost matter of fact way, yet with a fine lyrical and womanly touch."

The opening of the group show will be held on Saturday, June 6th, from 2 to 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Friends and family of the students will be wel-

Executive Women Invited to State Conference in NY

The 70's will be years of economic challenges, and economic planning for the future is one of the responsibilities of the New York State Commerce Department. Empire State executive women can be of great assistance in planning for the 70's, because of their valuable professional experience. So the State Commerce Department and the Department's Women's Council have invited women in important executive posts to attend the New York State Executive Women's Conference on Economic Development for the 70's.

The Conference will be held June 11th and 12th in New York City. Women from representative fields will contribute their ideas and exchange viewpoints on the problems of environment, manpower, markets and education.

Among those participating are Dr. Aaron J. Teller, President of Teller Environmental Systems, Incorporated and professor at Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art; Donald R. Kinker, a manager for Chrysler Corporation; and William F. Butler, Vice President of the Chase Manhattan Bank.

Ideas developed at the Executive Women's Conference could have impact on the future of all New Yorkers.

Exotic Fashions By Sant'Angelo Are Introduced

By CAROLYN A. BOWERS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Giorgio di Sant'Angelo opened up his fashion wigwam in May with outfits the like of which haven't been seen since Pocahontas was a bride.

Actress Dyan Cannon, who served as commentator, said the collection, complete with turkey feathers and racoon pelts, was inspired by the Maya, Aztec, Inca and Eskimo cultures, translated into what might be called exotic functionalism — moderately priced and easy wearing.

Sant'Angelo showed pantaloons, suede and leather skirts, dresses, suits with fringed or uneven jagged hemlines, and knits in primitive embroidery and prints.

He also showed several wide-swinging hooded capes, including one trimmed in animal pelts with a knitted racoon as the head covering.

Colors were bright and dramatically mixed and matched. Purple was shown combined with almost every color imaginable.

Designer Jacques Tiffreau's collection also was somewhat inspired by Indians—and cowboys—but the most attention getting creation was his bridal costume.

The bride-to-be who wears Tiffreau's wedding outfit won't have to worry about plushing, hairdo, makeup, tears of joy or otherwise.

Such a bride, you see, will wear an opaque white fabric bag over her head—seeing and talking through strategically placed holes. No one says she must remove it during the ceremony or reception. That's how she gets away with no hairdo, makeup.

The gown, a variation of the usual white type, had slits in the skirt—all the way up to micro-mini level.

For daytime Tiffreau endorsed gray flannel—in costumes, both skirted and with pants. These had Chanel-type jackets, from waist to hip-length.

Cowboy-inspired were outfits with suede vests. An unusual touch in head coverings for day and evening: Fabric attached to the neck and then pulled up past ears and tied in a bow at top of head. It provided a bunny look.

For evening the designer turned to satin or floral printed velvet. The satin mostly was black and made into provocative dresses exposing lots of bosom. Thigh-high slits made the skirts sexy.

Annual Performing Arts Ball In Saratoga; Aug. 8 Date

The sixth annual Saratoga Performing Arts Ball, which will honor the 70th birthdays of Maestro Eugene Ormandy and The Philadelphia Orchestra, both of which fall in 1970, will be held at fresco in the Saratoga Spa Park Saturday, August 8, following a performance by The Philadelphia Orchestra.

Joining the Board of Directors of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center on the lawn of the amphitheater, adjacent to the Hall of Springs, will be some 500 invited guests from the Capital District and Philadelphia. The ballgoers will dance to the music of a celebrated orchestra as well as pay tribute to Maestro Ormandy and his musicians who, along with the New York City Ballet, have made Saratoga Springs their permanent summer home since 1966.

Ormandy, who because of surgery planned on a long-standing hip injury will be physically unable to conduct the orchestra prior to its final concert on August 23, has promised that he will attend the ball in his honor "in a wheel chair if necessary."

Honor paid to the Orchestra will be formally accepted by its president, C. Wanton Ball.

Mrs. Gene Robb, Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and Mrs. David L. Yunich are serving as co-chairmen of the event, the proceeds of which will aid the Center's educational programs. Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller, chairman of the board of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, Inc., is serving as Honorary Ball Chairman, and last year's chairmen, Mrs. Robert Ducas, Mrs. Lester W. Herzog, Jr. and Mrs. Charles Mather II, have agreed to act as advisors.

Assisting the chairmen will be Miss Sue Yager, Mrs. Harry Marks, Mrs. Ray A. Elliott, Jr., Mrs. Mather, Mrs. Charles S. Dake and Mrs. Newman E. Wait, Jr. Further information may be obtained by writing to the Department of Development, Saratoga Performing Arts Center, Saratoga Springs, N.Y. 12866.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise:

Being fat all my life, I have never gone swimming because of my weight, plus my varicose veins. It has been years since I was in a bathing suit.

Well, I went on a diet, lost 30 pounds and was able to borrow my daughter's suit to go swimming. However, my veins still showed.

My husband then came to my rescue with the suggestion of putting my support panty hose under the suit.

It was beautiful! My daughter said, "Mama, you have a nice tan." She didn't know it was my support hose.

Honestly, Heloise, I really can't believe my eyes. Now I swim every chance I get, and, oh, it feels so good!

Mrs. R. D.

That's getting support when and where you need it. I'd say! And a great big kiss to you for the support your idea will give other women.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have very fine baby hair that does not hold a hair-do overnight, but I have found that sleeping on a satin pillowcase is a real help.

However, after I washed my case the first time, all the body was gone. I was most disappointed and even though I continued to use it, and it still kept my hair looking nice, the case just didn't feel the same.

So I tried spraying it while still damp with a "body spraystarch" (sizing), and then ironing it.

Lo and behold, a brand new satin pillowcase that felt the way it did when I bought it.

Margaret McElroy

Dear Heloise:

When trimming curtains, etc., with chenille ball tap use your zipper foot and you'll have no trouble with the balls catching between the feeder-teeth.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to Mrs. Kelleher of Baden, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Post: Occasionally in your column you deal with the problem of a person who has mailed a gift to someone and has received no acknowledgment.

Women of the Moose
Women of the Moose will hold Academy of Friendship Chapter Night, Wednesday, 8 p.m. Enrollment will be held. Academy of Friendship Chairman Anne Peters and her committee will serve refreshments. On the committee are Anne Rhode, Elsie Nessel, Kay Eaton and Jane Thronburg.
All members are urged to attend.

which leaves them wondering if the gift was received.

There is a very simple solution to this problem. Whenever I mailed a gift to anyone, at the same time I send a short note separately. This generally reads, "Congratulations on your special occasion. On this date I have mailed you a package to help celebrate. If you do not receive it within a reasonable time, please notify me." This only takes a few minutes and avoids an embarrassing situation.

Another suggestion: When sending a greeting card to a patient in the hospital, and you are not sure how long he will be there, put the patient's address in the upper left hand corner. If he has gone home the letter will be returned to him.

Love to live informally, but hope we never get so informal as to get thoughtless about our treatment of others. — Anne Kelleher

Environment RD-TB Topic

Prof, Seniors to Speak

"Our Environment: What do we want? How do we get it?" is the theme of the Catskill Region TB and RD Association at its first annual dinner meeting when it presents a Community College faculty member and two High School level students as guest speakers at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Wednesday night, June 3 at 6:30 p.m. Walter Moore, chairman of the Science and Mathematics Department, Sullivan County Community College; Debra Denkensohn, senior student, Rondout Valley High School and Betsy Godfried, senior student, Catskill High School will speak from the adult and youth levels of environmental interest and concern.

"We are pleased and fortunate to have this exceptional panel of adult and student speakers each of whom has a specific interest in the contribution toward the subject of our environment," said Saugerties.

ties banker John M. Robbins, Association president.

"We also would like to point out that these outstanding program participants represent the three areas now served by our Catskill Region: Greene, Sullivan and Ulster Counties."

Speakers Outlined

In announcing the guest speakers, Robbins noted that Moore is chairman of the Science and Mathematics Department of the Sullivan County Community College at South Fallsburg. A biologist, Moore received his AB and MA degrees at the East Carolina College, N.C., and did graduate study at the University of North Carolina, Ohio State and Bowdoin College, Me. Prior to this present department chairmanship, Moore led in the development of air and water pollution technology courses to be instituted at the College in the Fall. Moore is married, the father of three children, and resides at Neversink.

Debra Denkensohn, first of the two student speakers, is a senior student at the Rondout Valley High School, representing Ulster County on the panel. A member of the National Honor Society, and recently announced as the Valedictorian of her graduating class, Debra will be attending the University of Rochester in the Fall to specialize in Social Studies education on the second level. At Rondout Valley school, she is a member of the Senior Band, a member of the School's Student Council, and one of the key students in the school's Earth Day — Environmental program in April. She also is an assistant 4-H leader of the Accord Lucky Clover Buds. Last summer, she participated in the National Science Foundation Program in Biology at Syracuse University on a partial scholarship. She resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denkensohn at Accord.

DEBRA DENKENSOHN

Betsy Godfried, the student speaker representing the Greene County Area, is a senior at Catskill High School. She has served as a member of the Student Council; as staff on The Courant, the school paper; held the female lead roles in two Catskill Drama group shows; is active in the Ski Club; is treasurer of the Catskill High School Chorus, and is a member of the Catskill Chapter, National Honor Society. In the Fall she will attend the University of Syracuse as a drama major. She created the Clean-up project plan which was incorporated into the AWARE Club Earth-Day and Environmental program in April, and served as student advisor to the group. Betsy resides at Catskill with her parents Dr. and Mrs. William Godfried.

First Annual Event

Wednesday's program is the first annual dinner and meeting of the Catskill Region TB and RD group, with directors drawn from the three counties. The Association officially succeeded by consolidation, the former Greene County Health Association, Sullivan County Health Association and the Ulster County TB and Health Association. Its headquarters continue at the former Ulster Association's building at 124 Green Street, Kingston, and continues to serve the three counties in tuberculosis and respiratory disease and health programs, and the related areas of cigarette smoking and air pollution.

Another feature of the program will be the presentation of awards to four schools who have won the National Certificate of Honor through the School Press Project, sponsored by the TB-RD group in the Ulster-Sullivan-Greene areas.

President Robbins noted that the annual event had been developed by Mrs. N. DuBois Riley, Catskill chairman and her committee, including Mrs. Ralph Fegraus, Catskill; Mrs. Homer Burrell, Monticello; Mrs. Beryl L. Cole, Hurleyville; Mrs. William Porter, Port Ewen; Rabbi Harry Z. Scheetmann, Kingston and the Misses Almerna Porter RN, and Mabel Robinson RN, Association program volunteers.

Interested persons may make reservations for the dinner by contacting Association headquarters, 124 Green Street.

Saugerties Drug Lectures

The newly formed Saugerties Narcotics Guidance Council has scheduled a four-session lecture and training meeting starting with one at 7:30 tonight at Saugerties High School auditorium.

The next three, also at 7:30 p. m. will be held the next three Tuesdays, June 9, 16 and 23, all at the high school.

The topic of tonight's session is Education Toward the Prevention of Drug Abuse. Walter Silver, Association of Narcotic Education representative of the Narcotic Addiction Control Commission will be the speaker.

The local council was recently formed by the town government and includes Attorney Robert Francello, Dr. Robert A. McCaig, the Rev. John Needham, George Simmons, CYO director and Herman Wilcox of the school faculty.

The council has already recruited several dozen local citizens to assist with the council's programs. Anyone wishing to volunteer services may call one of the above council members.

Five committees of volunteers will be formed to serve on publicity, youth activities, counseling, school education programs and adult education.

A spokesman said Saugerties at this time does not have a serious drug problem and Saugerties does not want a drug problem and this is the reason for the formation of the council.

Legion Program Slated Tonight

Tonight 7:30 p.m. at the Saugerties United Methodist Church, Washington Avenue, Robert Post of the American Legion Post in Kingston will present a program "Revolutionaries on Campus."

There will be a film, a talk, and a discussion period concerning this very timely topic.

The Christian Social Relations Committee of the Woman's Society of Christian Service is sponsoring this program. Special guests will be the Golden Age Club of Saugerties. Any senior citizen needing transportation to and from this meeting is asked to call Mrs. J. M. Whitener at 4 Garden Court. The public is invited.

A deal to believe in. From a dealer to believe in.

If it takes value to make you believe in a car, believe in the new Buick Skylark. Every Buick is crafted with integrity. And filled with value. You get things like a cooling system that should never overheat, even with air conditioning. You get an automobile so well built that its drive train and chassis are literally tuned to the bias-belted tires that are standard equipment. So that they'll last even longer and provide even greater traction. One other point. Value also has to do with the man who sells and services the car you buy. Good service can help you maintain the value of your new car.

Check the good deals your Buick dealer is offering right now on the Buick of your choice. If you're looking for something to believe in, you'll find it there.

After all, wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

LEGGS MILLS BRIDGE
TOWN OF ULSTER, ULSTER COUNTY,
NEW YORK.

Leggs Mill Span — the Old, New

The long struggle of Town of Ulster officials to replace the 80-year-old one-lane Leggs Mills Bridge at Lake Katrine appears to have reached the drawing board stage and the engineer's drawing of the proposed two-lane concrete and steel span has been released for the public view. The drawing by Thomas J. Wickman, consulting engineer, shows the superstructure of the old bridge in the background. The County Legislature last year allocated $50,000 for preliminary planning. 2nd District Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf sponsored the original resolution for replacement of the Leggs Mills Road span. The new bridge spanning the Esopus Creek will be nearly 400 feet long with a 26-foot roadway and pedestrian walk on the west side. The old bridge will be kept in use until the new span is completed. Contracts will be offered for bidding later this year.

Promising Report On the Farm Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin told President Nixon today the nation's farm economy is on the upswing and that major steps have been taken to meet administration agricultural goals. In his first annual report to the White House, Hardin said progress also has been made in feeding the nation's hungry, improving the environment and planning for the future growth of rural America.

"The major continuing problem in agriculture," he added, "and one which specifically affects the level of income, is the capacity and the tendency to produce more of some crops than domestic and foreign markets can handle at satisfactory prices."

In summarizing 1969 activities, Hardin mentioned:
—A rise in farmers' realized net income to about $16 billion or $1.2 billion more than in 1968.
—An increase in average net income per farm to a record high of $5,401 compared with $4,841 in 1968.

—A per capita personal farm income of a record $2,375 average, compared with $2,163 in 1968 and $1,100 in 1960.

—Record total farm assets of $307 billion, compared with $297 billion in 1968 and $178 billion in 1960.

—Record farm-owned equity of $249 billion versus $243 billion in 1968 and $178 billion in 1960.

However, the report said, average farm income in 1969 still was only about three-fourths that of nonfarmers.

To combat overproduction, Hardin said, steps were launched last year to arrive at a consensus on new farm legislation which "would bring about production adjustment and maintain farm income without inhibiting the growth of markets or placing obstacles in the way of farming efficiency."

On rural development, Hardin said, the U.S. population may increase by as many as 100 million persons by the next century. The House Agriculture Committee is currently involved in drafting an omnibus farm bill and added that if all are concentrated in the cities the result "could be disastrous."

Dodgers Defeat Cubs, 5-4

(By The Associated Press) The skies over Chicago and Don Sutton's career record against the Cubs weren't the very best recommendations for Los Angeles to start Monday's ball game. But Los Angeles went ahead anyway and, like most things have lately, everything turned out well for the Dodgers.

Sutton, who had lost 13 of 14 career decisions against the Cubs, waited out an hour and seven minute rain delay at the start for another shot. Then, after the Dodgers rallied for three runs in the sixth inning, Sutton sweated out another hour and 32 minutes of rain before the game was called and the Dodgers won 5-4.

In Monday's only other game, Pittsburgh trimmed San Diego 5-1.

San Francisco's game at St. Louis was postponed by rain at the very start of the game. Then, with LA trailing 4-2 and the skies looking ominous, Willie Davis opened the sixth with a triple. Wes Parker doubled him home and Grabarkewicz followed with his fifth homer of the season and second in as hitless after being tagged for many days.

Sutton, 7-5, retired the Cubs in the bottom half of the sixth and then the rain washed out the remainder of the game. It was the fourth straight victory for the Dodgers and moved them into second place in the National League's Western Division.

Now, automation has taken over and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's face may be red because of it. Computer cards with a slate of candidates drawn up during the spring training to allow for printing and distribution show some glaring omissions.

Such top hitters as Rico Carty, Bill Grabarkewicz, Felipe Alou and Alex Johnson were not included and need a heavy write-in vote for the July 14 starting team at Cincinnati.

Meanwhile, Ken Harrelson, out all season so far after a spring training injury, and Mike Shannon, sidelined most of the season by a kidney ailment, are listed.

The voting on the candidates began last Saturday and will run through June 28. A check of the top ten hitters in each of the two leagues through games of Monday, June 1, shows that 1 of the 2 were not nominated by major league managers and player representatives during the spring.

One of the most embarrassing omissions from the list of nominees is Carty, the Atlanta Braves' slugger who tops the National League with a .436 mark, or 42 points better than any other regular (at least 125 at bats) in either league.

Carty, who hit .556 during the past week, also has 14 homers and 45 runs batted in. Grabarkewicz, a rookie surprise for the Los Angeles Dodgers at third base, is batting .373, right behind Cincinnati's Tony Perez, .376, who was nominated for the team.

Alou is clubbing the ball at a .344 clip for the Oakland Athletics and Johnson is hitting .366 for the California Angels. Other American League non-nominees in the top ten are Cleveland's Vada Pinson, .336, and veteran A' Kalline of Detroit, .329.

The National League's top ten has six who were not nominated. In addition to Carty and Grabarkewicz, they are Dick Dietz, San Francisco catcher, .350; Clarence Gaston, San Diego outfielder, .337; Ken Hender, San Francisco outfielder, .335, and Art Shamsky, New York Mets' first baseman-outfielder, .331.

Such long ball hitters as Milwaukee outfielder Danny Walston (38 RBIs) and San Diego first baseman Nate Colbert (17 homers) need the write-in vote.

In addition to Perez, the list of nominees in the NL includes the following leading hitters: Ronnino to assure him the beating he got in the hospital room Monday after a 5-1 decision over San Diego.

Triggs said Blair suffered double vision from the pitch but felt it could not be determined whether there will be any permanent damage to his left eye where the lower part of the orbit bone or socket was damaged.

Ganders Set New Team Mark

STONE RIDGE Rondout High School's baseball team added another mark to the school's record as they defeated New Paltz High 7-4. The new mark was the most successful season ever by a Gander team, a 10-2 record. The Ganders clinched the UCL title two weeks ago. Mike Alecca was the winning hurler giving up eight hits and Rich Schiller took the loss, but gave up only six hits. George Wallach led the Gander attack with two hits. Rick Pesavento collected three of New Paltz's eight hits in four trips to the plate. The Ganders jumped to a 2-0 lead, were tied 2-2, went ahead 3-2 and tied again 3-3 at the end of four innings. Rondout went ahead 7-3, before New Paltz scored its final run in the top of the seventh.

Fair Street Is Winner In Bowling

KINGSTON Fair Street Reformed Team 1 and Presbyterian fought it out right down to the wire for the championship of the Federation of Protestant Men's Clubs Bowling League with the Reformed squad winning by a ½ game, 57-42 to 56½-42½. Trinity Lutheran was third at 54-45. The Presbyterian team had both the high single and triple scratch series at 784 and 2191. Fair Street 2 had the handicap high single at 758 while High Falls had the high triple at 2121. Harold Pine posted the high average for the season at 176. He also rolled a 670 and a 266. However, due to a league rule, Ron Costello won the triple award at 616, while Bob Nussbaum had the single at 257, via the same league rule. The Kingston Bowling Association award for high single game went to Pine with his 266. Al May got the American Bowling Congress Triplicate Award for his 148 and Dick Diehl won the A.B.C. most improved average award for his increase of 12 pins. Members of the winning team were: Ted Young, Koni Borst, Connie Roth and Jack Spader. Other high average bowlers behind Pine are: Roth 172, Joel Kiff 169, Spader 169, Nussbaum 169, Al Brice 166, Costello 165, Larry DeCicco 161, Preston DeWitt 161, Jack Kelse 160. The results: Fair Street Reformed 1, 57-42; Presbyterian, 56½-42½; Trinity Lutheran 2, 54-45; Clinton Ave. Meth., 51-48; Albany Ave. Baptist, 49½-49½; Fair Street 2, 49½-49½; Redeemer Lutheran 1, 49-50; High Falls Reformed, 49-50; Trinity Lutheran 3, 47-52; Redeemer Lutheran 2, 43-55.

Scoring Guard

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers became only the third guard in NBA history to win the NBA scoring title when he averaged 31.4 points a game last season. Max Zaslofsky in Wilson Brooks, 109-27, and Mrs. 1947-48 with Chicago and De-troit's Dave Bing in 1967-68 are previous backcourt scoring champs.

Rios, Lyons Make First 9

STONE RIDGE Ulster County Community College placed two players on the first All Mid-Hudson Conference baseball team and four on the second team for 1970. Greg Rios was voted top third baseman in the conference and Harry Lyons was awarded one of the outfield posts. Named to the second team were first baseman Gary Schatzel, second baseman Mike Patrick, pitcher Rich Connors and outfielder Harry Lyons. Michelsen of Rockland and Paul McPeck of Dutchess are the pitchers on the mythical squad. The remainder of the lineup: catcher, John Basalyga, Orange; first base, Pat Dolan, Dutchess; second base, Rocky Veronesi, Dutchess; shortstop, Steve Mineo, Dutchess; outfielders, Michels, Dutchess, and Cole, Orange. Second Team Pitchers, Connors, UCCC, Belknap, Orange; catcher, Ramos, Rockland; 1b, Schatzel, UCCC; 2b, Patrick, UCCC; 3b, Hoover, Rockland; ss, Tom DiStefano, Orange; outfielders, Kaplan of Sullivan, Lyons of UCCC and Lappetito, Rockland.

Dutchess led with five first place berths, but UCCC had most players on both teams, six. Eric Michelsen, the Rockland County pitcher, was voted Most Valuable Player of the year. Veronesi of Dutchess led the Conference batsmen with a .438 average on 14 hits in 32 trips to the plate. Michels of Dutchess was runnerup with .419; Ramos of Rockland had .414 and Kaplan of Sullivan batted .407. Mike Patrick of Ulster made the top five with .389 off 14 hits in 36 at bats.

OCS Linksmen Near Showdown

ELLENVILLE Eric Krieger had the same score for the losers, 37, hitting two points over John Buoymaster's 39 and one. A showdown for the Ulster County Athletic League crown with Rondout Valley, defeated host Ellenville, defending Section Nine champs, 7-5 at the par 34 Shawangunk Course. The John came back to birdie and par-three fifth and then parred out. John Berger scored two points for the Ellies with a 39 over Scotty Dean's

Antiwar Movement Hits Officers Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The antiwar movement has reached the U.S. military officers corps. Calling themselves the Concerned Officers Movement, about 25 Washington-based officers, mostly Navy men, have banded together to provide a forum for what they say is growing disillusionment among their ranks with the Indochina war. A leader says the small group is probably the first antiwar organization at the officer level.

"Most of the junior officers are somewhat disillusioned about the war in Indochina," Lt. (j.g.) Phil Lehman, a Harvard graduate with eight months of Vietnam duty behind him, told a reporter.

Lehman, now in a supply billet here, said the group has broader concerns than the war — military justice and what he called "the quality of life in the military." The group reportedly has contacted other bases with favorable responses coming from California, Florida and Rhode Island.

The chief tool the organization uses to spread its views is a monthly newsletter.

The first issue of the newsletter, distributed in April, contended that U.S. policies had "turned an internal political struggle into a nation-destroying blood bath" in Vietnam.

Through its newsletter, the organization said its purpose is to "serve notice to the military and the nation that the officer corps is not part of a silent majority, that it is not going to let its thought be fashioned by the Pentagon."

Lehman said his commanding officer discussed the matter with him but there was no harassment.

Nobody has suggested he stop his activity—"not yet"—Lehman said.

The lieutenant said the newsletter is being put out in conformity with regulations, since neither government facilities, materials nor time are used.

Lehman indicated the organization makes strong efforts to avoid inflammatory rhetoric in getting its ideas across.

Lehman said most of the members of the organization entered the service, as he did, through ROTC or received commissions from officer candidate schools. None are "career motivated," he said.

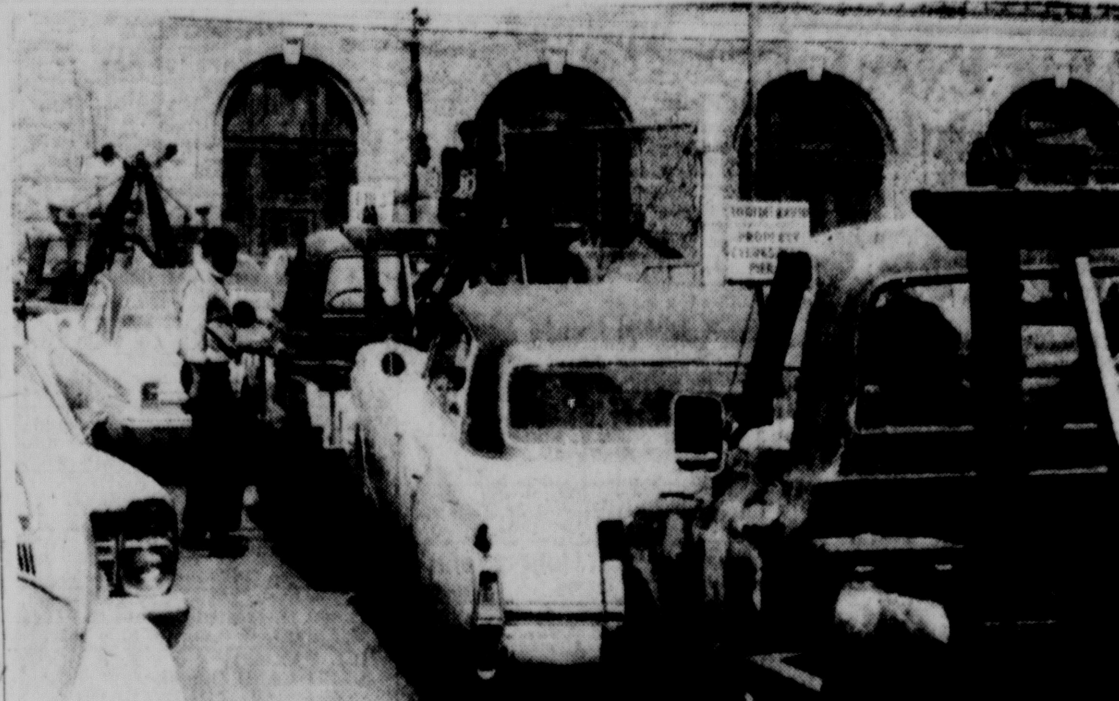

They range in age from 23 to 30, several are doctors and a number of them have served in Vietnam.

Asked why he joined ROTC, Lehman said he was perfectly willing to serve.

"I felt I had to serve my military obligation and that being an officer in the Navy was the best way to do this," he said.

Lehman agreed that a number of enlisted men's antiwar activist groups have been in the field for some time. But, he said, "they don't welcome officer participation."

Anyway, he added, "they are more radical than we are."

BRISK BUSINESS — Cars arrive at New York City's "tow pound," the temporary home for vehicles left by unwary drivers in no-parking zones. Perhaps New York drivers will become more careful for now they must pay $75 ($50 for the towing, $25 for the fine) to redeem their automobiles. Previously, the charge was $50. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Mayor Addonizio Trial Underway On Extortion, Conspiracy Charges

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—The past from Newark for water and sewage system work. The trial has attracted much publicity for its focus on alleged corruption among municipal office-holders.

Three of the defendants, Newark City Councilmen Calvin D. West, Frank Addonizio and Irvin I. Turner, also are in the runoff election.

Councilman expected to reduce his campaigning in the runoff to evening appearances only.

Other defendants include Benjamin Krusch, who had been scheduled to stand trial with the other 12 men, won former Newark city attorney's severance Monday, and delay of Phillip Gordon and Norman his trial until a date not yet set, Schiff.

His attorney said a joint trial would prejudice Krusch's opportunity for acquittal. Addonizio has appealed the trial date and location up to the U.S. Supreme Court, but was denied. The necessity of attending court sessions each day and traveling back to Newark from Trenton, about 80 miles, was a runoff election. Councilman expected to reduce his campaigning in the runoff to evening appearances only.

GI Brother in Heaven, Nixon Writes Boy, 10

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has assured a 10-year-old boy that his half-brother, a decorated soldier killed in Vietnam, is in heaven.

Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., made public an exchange of letters between the President and Gordon Danese of Essex, Md., brother of the late S. Sgt. Richard J. Hill, 24, winner of 13 medals, including the Distinguished Service Cross.

"I called you on the phone," the boy wrote Nixon, "but I got afraid and hung up."

"My brother liked the Army," a general gave us Ricks medals. I cried but I was proud.

"So you think my brother is in heaven now?" The President replied: "Dear Gordon: ... When you lose a brother, it can be very, very hard to be brave. Yet since your brother was a hero, I know you will want to act the way he did, and by showing your bravery, remind others what a wonderful young man he was."

"You asked me if Rick is in heaven, I'm sure he is. He is also in another important place in your heart and your spirit. Don't ever forget that your best brother was a hero not because he liked to be in a war, but because he wanted to save you and millions of others from ever fighting in a war."

"I called you on the phone," the boy wrote Nixon, "but I got afraid and hung up."

Charge Forgery In Using Name Of Slain Student

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Two men are charged with using a name similar to that of a murdered Syracuse University graduate student to forge checks, police revealed Monday.

A third man is charged with possessing a stolen credit card that has the same name.

The name on the checks and the card, police said, was "B. Ray Thompson." B. Raymond Thompson, 29, a doctoral student and aide in the city's public school system, was found dead in a ditch last Thursday in suburban DeWitt.

Police said the murder remained unsolved.

Charged with 2nd degree forgery in connection with bad checks passed last week in Cortland were Frank W. Fink, 22, and Daniel K. Duff, 24, both of Syracuse. They were arrested in Syracuse by state police and held without bail in the Cortland County jail.

Charged with 2nd degree criminal possession of stolen property was Richard Giancobbie of Syracuse. Police said Giancobbie had in his possession a stolen Marine Midland Master charge card.

Giancobbie was arraigned Monday in the town of Clay and held in $2,500 bail at Onondaga County jail.

Thompson's half naked body had a rope around the neck when it was found. Authorities said he died of asphyxiation.

Fifteen Drown

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI)—Fifteen persons, most of them women and children, drowned Sunday night when a small boat capsized two miles off the Tanzanian coast, police said Monday.

Police said the boat was on a pleasure cruise to a nearby island. Four men on the boat swam to shore safely, they said.

Dear Abby

Sex Before Marriage?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: That 17-year-old boy who wrote, "the boy is not always the aggressor," knew what he was talking about.

I am a 17-year-old girl, and several times I have felt like going farther than I should with my boyfriend, whom I really like.

All of us have normal passions that get stronger during adolescence. Married people have an outlet for their sexual desires, but what about teenagers?

In American society, we are expected to abstain from sex relations for years and years until we are married. Why? So many other countries like Samoa have relaxed marital codes. I can see logical reasons for not being promiscuous, such as danger of venereal disease and unwanted babies, but when two healthy people want sex and know how to prevent pregnancy, and disease, why the big "No No?"

Our society is way ahead in so many things, like science, but it leaves its natural urges to wither away by pretending they don't exist.

If there is any valid reason why two healthy people in love should refrain from pre-marital sex, I would like to know what it is.

TRUTH SEEKING: The big "No No" is not the relationship between two normal, healthy, MATURE, responsible people "in love"—it's the use of sex by the immature, irresponsible, confused adolescent who mistakes his first sexual stirrings for "love."

"Knowing" how to prevent unwanted pregnancies and venereal disease is not enough to prevent them—witness NO decline in illegitimacy even with The Pill—and in spite of all the education concerning venereal disease, it's still on the INCREASE.

When you are ready to accept all the responsibilities and commitments of "love" and a family, you will not ask me what is wrong with pre-marital sex.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and a diabetic. My doctor has me on a very strict diet, and I have to have my meals served promptly at certain hours.

For instance, I have to have eight ounces of meat for dinner every night with a vegetable and some starch, and for breakfast I have to have two pieces of bacon, one egg, a glass of orange juice and milk.

My problem is, I want to visit some friends of mine this summer at their cottages. How can I go about asking the parents of my friends to serve me special foods at a set time without sounding rude or selfish?

DIABETIC GIRL: Since you obviously do not know the parents of your friends well enough to make such requests without embarrassment, if you want to visit them, I suggest you provide your own special foods, and also be prepared to cook for yourself.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

CONTEST: (Q.) Another girl and I are competing for the most popular boy in school. He seems to like both of us. But she is much more attractive than I am.

She has a tremendous shape—36-24-36—and she wears clothes to show it off.

Please help me!—Losing (I'm Afraid) in Pennsylvania. (A.) Most boys can see through shapes and fashions to the real girl underneath. So quit concentrating on what you think are the other girl's assets and concentrate on your own assets.

Let the boy see the real you in your eyes, your choice, your smile.

Let him see your interest in him, too. But don't let him see your envy of the other girl. As his interest in you grows, your envy of her will disappear.

RUIN: (Comment) My advice to the 15-year-old "Square Girl" who wrote you is to tell her drug-loving friends no, she can do without their poison. That's what it is—poison. I know. I was a nobody, see? I wanted people to notice me. I found a way, drugs. A little grass, then a little hash, then a few pills.

I went on five trips. My friend Sue she went part of the way on one trip with me. But she got an overdose and died. Two of my buddies died on a couple of other trips. How did I live through it? I don't know.

I'm no square now. I'm not "reformed." I'm a fugitive. The police are after me.

But I know that the right answer when somebody offers you drugs is "No!"

My trouble is that I didn't learn the right answer soon enough.—Black Memories in Massachusetts.

(A.) When, as I do, you read 100 to 300 letters like this one each week, you realize that many young people have learned neither the right answer nor the price. The price is high!

(Newspaper Enterprise Ass.)

DEAR ABBY: I am involved in patient care in a hospital. We are frequently criticized as being "heartless" for asking the "next of kin" for permission to perform a post mortem (autopsy). Obviously we cannot ask this question before the patient dies. Equally obviously we cannot wait until the grief has passed (a year or more — if ever).

If people understood that an autopsy is simply a careful examination of the body by specially trained doctors, perhaps there would be a greater acceptance of the procedure. No more "damage" is done to the body than is done by embalming which is required by a law in most states.

Even tho the cause of death may be known, much may be learned from an autopsy. (For example, "how the cancer spread" may help researchers find ways to reduce the suffering of future cancer patients. Or it may give clues to earlier detection of the disease.)

There is nothing to lose and so much to be gained from autopsies. If you print this, perhaps more people would be less horrified, and more understanding. Thank you.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A number of changes in personal or business relationships will require more detailed attention than you might think to be necessary. Be very careful you understand whatever situation arises for there are apt to be obscure factors that require close watching.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have practical dreams that can become a reality if you study the financial aspects closely and wisely. Pay bills, do some collecting, be more careful with budget. Be clever.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure that an associate doesn't try some trick that could cost you heavily, and then all is fine. Be with loyal friends who like to do what you want, help you with your plans. Be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try not to avoid any important responsibility that needs your careful attention now. Be steadfast, dependable. Do whatever will bring you the favor of an expert in your field.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) See what it is that close friends have to suggest instead of being so lackadaisical about things. Improve your lot through some fine idea. The social is fine, but be more objective.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid that clash between an official and kin by using diplomacy—or keep them separated. Handle that civic matter that stamps you as an A-1 citizen. Your public image needs improvement right now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Cultivate those fine ideas that can improve your lot in life and make routine duties easier and more profitable. A new contact gives fine ideas. Find out how far this person is willing to back you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You had better handle those matters concerning others first before you worry about your own personal affairs. A mate may make rather difficult demands. Do whatever you think is right and forget about the rest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make new agreements with partners at whatever location is best for such purposes. Negotiate intelligently. Do not argue over points of difference at this time. Concentrate on the basic matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Delve into the important work ahead of you and get rid of tensions that have been bothering you for some time. You know what co-workers want from you. Try to please them and get much done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to change your attitude if you are to gain the good will of friends and relatives, business contacts. You have some fine talents. Do whatever is necessary to get them before the right people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan your time well so that you get both outside and home affairs well handled, without one conflicting with the other. Leave nothing undone. Discuss plans for a more successful future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy on the telephone and get the data you need. Plan some little trip that is important to your welfare. Do some shopping that is necessary for completing wardrobe. Be active, be happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those practical young people who has to be taught the importance of the idealistic so there can be a well-rounded life. Give the right spiritual training early. Slant the education along such lines as property management, building, banking, etc. Making money will start early in this career. Give benefit of sports and travel early, too. Care where diet is concerned is important here. Music lessons are good. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for June is now ready. Tube's Plucky Cinderallas

NEW YORK (AP) — Public television stations and the National Educational Television network have achieved an image as plucky Cinderellas, struggling along bravely in penury while their more affluent show business sisters—stage, films and particularly commercial television—get the breaks and the big money.

It is true that the usual lean budgets of educational stations do not permit lavish productions but sometimes the very existence of the other media make possible some of the better educational network efforts.

In mid-May, for instance, there was a 2½-hour production of "The Andersonville Trial" with George C. Scott directing a cast that included Richard Basehart, William Shatner, Buddy Ebsen, Jack Cassidy and Cameron Mitchell. They were all big stars working for their own enjoyment at a tiny fraction of their usual salaries.

On June 11, the NET network will present a 90-minute tragedy, "The Ceremony of Innocence," with Richard Kiley playing a 10th century English king, Ethelred, beset by trouble in his court and by invading Norsemen and Danes.

Kiley, an actor for 25 years and the original "Man of La Mancha" on Broadway, put in some profitable time recently playing guest-star roles in Saxon history, saw a similarity between the problems of the early English ruler and those confronting modern man.

"He was a king whose kingdom was never at peace, yet Ethelred was a man who wanted to build, not destroy," Kiley said. "He knew war was a waste and that swinging battle axes never solved anything. He wanted to settle the dispute without battle, so he was held to be a coward—and he wasn't."

Ribman's play originally was produced off-Broadway a couple of seasons ago, but failed to cause many waves. Kiley believes that, because of its timely and perhaps painful theme, its impact will be greater now in television.

Negative Double Helps Force Slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby

If you don't want to use negative doubles at all you don't have to do so. You also don't have to read this article but we feel that it will be of great interest to nearly all bridge players. They won't have to use the bid but they will have some idea of what to do when it is used against them.

The basic idea of the negative double is that when your partner's opening bid is overcalled, your double of the overcall is for take-out, not for business.

The believers in this bid use it over all sorts of overcalls. Since you should get your feet wet before you learn to swim we are only going to discuss the basic case. The double of a one-spade overcall of a minor suit opening to show at least six high-card points and to guarantee at least four hearts. It also implies some preparation for anything your partner may do.

With 12 points North has a very good negative double. South cue-bids spades since his hand is very strong and he wants to force to game. West's double of two spades gave North a chance to pass and await developments. When South bid hearts North felt strong enough to invite a slam and South accepted.

South won the first spade; returned the suit and ruffed the third lead. Then he played three rounds of trumps and three top clubs. When West showed out on the third club, South knew he had started with exactly six spades; three hearts

Sorensen Confident of Primary Victory

By LYNN MULVANEY
KINGSTON

"I'm looking forward to exposing Goodell for the hypocrite he is," Democratic senatorial candidate Theodore Sorensen told The Daily Freeman in a press conference in Kingston Monday.

Assessing his chances in the four-way June 23 Democratic Primary as well as in the November election in which he would face incumbent Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell, Sorensen said he thinks he can win.

The former aide to Sen. John F. Kennedy easily dismissed the Erie County Democratic organization's switch of support from him to Rep. Richard McCarthy earlier in the day saying, "It doesn't distress me or surprise me... They are obligated to support their hometown candidate... his candidacy is not taken seriously there.

Sorensen also faces Paul O'Dwyer and Rep. Richard Ottinger in the primary.

Of Goodell, the 42-year-old lawyer said, "The Democrats dislike him... he has no credibility."

Asked if Goodell and his (Sorensen's) views on Vietnam differed in any way, he said, "not at all," but, added that the point is one of "effectiveness."

Citing the fact that Goodell offered a bill in the Senate to cut funds supporting the military, Sorensen pointed out that no one supported the proposal last fall but a similar bill, now introduced by Sen. George McGovern is winning approval from 36 Republican and Democratic senators.

Asked about college campus disruption, the Nebraska-born son of a Republican attorney general, said he has talked with students and found them to be responsible and not prone to violence. He advocated isolating the extremists saying once this is accomplished their power will wane.

He suggested that there has been too much outside interference on campuses which has "contributed to violators and radicals."

"It makes no sense to place undisciplined and untrained National Guardsmen on campus," he said. "The savage folly of violence doesn't accomplish anything."

Of wage and price controls, Sorensen said they should only be imposed as a last resort and suggested a voluntary freeze on wages and prices.

He also said that while he does not want to see the powers of the president diminished, he would like to see the powers of Congress exercised.

Sorensen was in the Mid-Hudson area to visit Poughkeepsie and Newburgh as well as Kingston where he was greeted by Democratic County Chairman Aaron E. Klein in his John Street law office. On hand to meet him were Sheriff William B. Martin, Minority Leader of the County Legislature Roger Mable, County Legislators William Edelmuth and James Gilpatrick and Alderman Florence S. Ludlow.

Sorensen, who arrived with Dutchess Democratic Chairman Glenn Van Bramer, who is actively working with him in the campaign, warned that the Mid-Hudson region is in danger of becoming another victim of suburban sprawl unless good planning and federal assistance are used.

Noting that the counties of Ulster, Dutchess, Columbia, much of the rural landscape Putnam, Greene, Orange and will be despoiled." Sorensen's plan to cope with the growth is closely aligned with the proposals put forth last week by Mid-Hudson Pattern son region will need almost 150,000 new dwelling units in 15 years. The danger is that Plan Association.

...Meanwhile, Support for the GOP

By United Press International
While the Democratic candidates are worrying about the primary, the Republicans are gathering support for the general election in November.

Three of the four U.S. Senate Democratic contenders spoke at a forum Monday night in Middletown and the two Democratic gubernatorial candidates agreed to meet for two debates before the June 23 primary.

Meanwhile the GOP ticket, led by Governor Rockefeller, threw a lavish evening reception for 250 union leaders. The reception was paid for by the Republican state committee, according to a spokesman for Rockefeller.

It was held only hours after 169,000 Teamsters Joint Council 16 announced it was supporting Rockefeller for a fourth term. Teamster officials, along with many construction trades leaders who have already endorsed the governor, attended the reception, which featured large amounts of food and drink and a five-piece band.

The entire Republican slate, including Sen. Charles E. Goodell, Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz and controller candidate Edward Regan of Buffalo, attended the reception.

Nicholas Kisburg, legislative director of the Teamsters council, called Democratic gubernatorial aspirant Arthur J. Goldberg and Howard J. Samuels "incumbent candidates" who took "a sort of adult SDS approach which says nothing is really worth saving in western culture." It was the first time the council has supported a Republican for governor.

Theodore Sorensen, Paul O'Dwyer and Richard McCarthy, Democratic Senate hopefuls, disagreed on only a few points in their appearance before Orange County Democrats.

Sorensen downplayed the endorsement of McCarthy by Erie County Democrats, saying he was not going to "worry about it." McCarthy said he won election to Congress with the backing of his home county's party and expected it to be a valuable asset in the primary.

All three urged a pullout of U.S. Forces from Vietnam. O'Dwyer said the U.S. should supply planes to Israel, while the other two disagreed with him. Samuels was at the Middletown forum and criticized Goldberg for failing to appear. Pointing to an empty seat with a sign spelling out Goldberg's name, Samuels said "That's about as close as I ever came to him."

The two candidates will be a bit closer on June 14 and June 21 when they will debate on television. The first debate will be 8 to 9 p.m. at WOKR-TV, Rochester, and the second, 10-11 p.m., WNBC-TV, New York.

In other campaign action on Monday: — The right of Adam Walinsky to run for attorney general in the Democratic primary was upheld unanimously by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court. The division granted Walinsky's challenger, Rockland County Dist. Atty. Robert H. Meehan, the right to argue Walinsky's residency qualifications before the State Court of Appeals. Meehan said he would continue the suit.

— Jerome Ambro, Democratic contender for lieutenant governor, said banks should be required to earmark "a minimum 10 per cent" of their deposits for use in making mortgage loans.

— Lefkowitz urged businessmen to "seek constantly to upgrade both product quality and marketing methods, designed with the consumer in mind." He addressed a conference of Long Island Civil Service Employees Association members at Lake Kerhonkson.

Cambodia Continues Search For Missing Television Crews

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodian government sent a battalion of paratroopers into the search today for two American network television crews missing south of Phnom Penh since Sunday.

The CBS and NBC teams, a total of eight men, were feared captured by Communist troops along with the three Cambodian drivers.

Three American correspondents were in the group—George Sylvester and Gerry Miller of CBS, and Willis Hagen of NBC.

Military spokesmen said the Cambodian paratroopers took up the search 35 miles south of the capital on both sides of Highway 3, where the two teams were last seen. Their three cars were later found abandoned. A total of 20 correspondents to have been captured.
